Elegantly written provocative and rich in insight it will be required reading for all students of the period The Meinertzhagen Mystery Brian Garfield,2007 Tall handsome charming Col Richard Meinertzhagen 1878 1967 was an acclaimed British war hero a secret agent and a dean of international ornithology His exploits inspired three biographies movies have been based on his life and a square in Jerusalem is dedicated to his memory Meinertzhagen was trusted by Winston Churchill David Lloyd George Chaim Weizmann David Ben Gurion T E Lawrence Elspeth Huxley and a great many others He bamboozled them all Meinertzhagen was a fraud Many of the adventures recorded in his celebrated diaries were imaginary including a meeting with Hitler while he had a loaded pistol in his pocket an attempt to rescue the Russian royal family in 1918 and a shoot out with Arabs in Haifa when he was seventy years old True he was a key player in Middle Eastern events after World War I and during the 1930s he represented Zionism's interests in negotiations with Germany. But he also set up Nazi front organizations in England committed a half century of major and costly scientific fraud and oddly may have been innocent of many killings to which he confessed e.g. the murder of his own polo groom a crime of which he cheerfully boasted although the evidence suggests it never occurred at all. Further he may have been guilty of at least one homicide of which he professed innocence. A compelling read about a flamboyant rogue. The Meinertzhagen Mystery shows how recorded history reflects not what happened but what we believe happened. Beatrice Webb (1858-1943) Mary Ann Romano, 1998. This volume seeks to capture the sociological imagination of Beatrice Webb by enlarging upon her two most notable contributions: her application of the scientific methods to the study of social problems and the way she turned government into a science to try to combat social problems. Breaking Conventions Patricia Auspos, 2023-07-13. This rich history illuminates the lives and partnerships of five married couples: two British, three American, whose unions defied the conventions of their time and anticipated social changes that were to come in the ensuing century. In all five marriages both husband and wife enjoyed thriving professional lives, a shocking circumstance at a time when wealthy white married women were not supposed to have careers and career women were not supposed to marry. Patricia Auspos examines what we can learn from the relationships of the Palmers, the Youngs, the Parsons, the Webbs, and the Mitchells, exploring the implications of their experiences for our understanding of the history of gender equality and of professional work. In expert and lucid fashion Auspos draws out the interconnections between the institutions of marriage and professional life at a time when both were undergoing critical changes by looking specifically at how a pioneering generation tried to combine the two. Based on extensive archival research and drawing on mostly unpublished letters, journals, pocket diaries, poetry, and autobiographical writings, Breaking Conventions tells the intimate stories of five path-breaking marriages and the social dynamics they confronted and revealed. This book will appeal to scholars, students, and anyone interested in women's studies, gender studies, masculinity studies, histories of women in the professions, and the history of marriage. In Search of Song: The Life and Times of Lucy Broadwood Dorothy de Val, 2016-05-23.

Born into the famous family of piano makers, Lucy Broadwood (1858-1929) became one of the chief collectors and scholars of the first English folk music revival in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Privately educated and trained as a classical musician and singer, she was inspired by her uncle to collect local song from her native Sussex. The desire to rescue folk song from an aging population led to the foundation of the Folk Song Society, of which she was a founder member. Mentor to younger collectors such as Percy Grainger but often at loggerheads with fellow collector Cecil Sharp and the young Ralph Vaughan Williams, she eventually ventured into Ireland and Scotland while remaining an eclectic contributor and editor of the Society's journal.

which became a flagship for scholarly publication of folksong She also published arrangements of folk songs and her own compositions which attracted the attention of singers such as Harry Plunket Greene Using an array of primary sources including the diaries Broadwood kept throughout her adult life Dorothy de Val provides a lively biography which sheds new light on her early years and chronicles her later busy social artistic and musical life while acknowledging the underlying vulnerability of single women at this time Her account reveals an intelligent generous though reserved woman who with the help of her friends emerged from the constraints of a Victorian upbringing to meet the challenges of the modern world

Lewis, 1991 Considers the contribution of women to social action in Victorian and Edwardian England highlighting the role of women in public life and the influence of the state as compared to the individual or philanthropic activity in the development of welfare provision

Bolshevism and the British Left: The Webbs and Soviet communism Kevin Morgan, 2006 This is the second book in Kevin Morgan's series Bolshevism and the British Left It explores how the veteran Fabian socialists Beatrice and Sidney Webb came to regard Stalin's Russia as a new civilisation and the hope of the world Through a meticulous reconstruction of the Webbs' thinking Morgan offers a challenging reassessment of accepted stereotypes Drawing on their diaries papers and published writings he assesses the couple's complex political evolution over some four decades and shows how much more significant were their individual responses than the cliché of two typewriters beating as one would suggest. While Sidney upheld the statist and technocratic perspectives synonymous with Webbism, Beatrice also contributed concerns with associationism and the search for a higher social morality. Their love affair with Soviet communism, which seemed to represent both synthesis and transcendence of these different strands of their thought, was far less idiosyncratic than is sometimes thought. Here it is discussed in a broader context and the paradox that emerges is that across the European left it was often precisely those who had previously been most suspicious of state socialism who subsequently proved most susceptible to its Soviet apotheosis. Kevin Morgan is Professor of Politics and Contemporary History at the University of Manchester. He is the author of Harry Pollitt (Manchester University Press, 1993) and co-author of Communists in British Society 1920-1991 (Rivers Oram Press, 2005). The Webbs and Soviet Communism is the Part 2 in a three-volume series Bolshevism and the British Left which examines attitudes to Soviet Russia as a way of opening up broader questions about the character of the British left between the 1890s and the 1940s. Part 1 is Labour Legends: Russian Gold. Part 3 is due to be published in 2012. NWSA Journal, 1988. Performing Global Networks. Karen Fricker, Ronit Lentin, 2007. Networks are everywhere from migrant organisations to information technology from business to social movements from international governance to global non-governmental organisations from theatrical collectives to fan clubs from memory sites to narrative circles. The portmanteau terms networks and more specifically global networks seem to have become the mots du jour in contemporary cultural and social studies. But what cultural, social and political work do global networks accomplish? What is the work of these networks? This path-breaking collection follows Graeme Thompson's rallying cry for a clearer analytical approach to the ways in which networks are enacted, assembled, conducted and performed. TM In its thirteen chapters, scholars from a variety of fields: sociology, theatre and performance studies, peace studies, history and musicology as well as social and cultural activists explore the multiple meanings of global networks and performance. Labour History Review, 1992. How did eighteenth-century aesthetics come to so strongly influence not only the theology but also the practice of Christianity by the late nineteenth century? The twelve essays in Subliminal Aspects seek to answer this question by examining interfaces between literature, aesthetics and theology from 1715-1885. In doing so they consider the theological import of canonical writers such as Daniel Defoe, Alexander Pope, Voltaire and Immanuel Kant as well as writers whose work is now experiencing a revival, namely women writers including Mary Anne Schimmelpenninck, Anne Brontë, Frances Ridley Havergal, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Adelaide Procter. The volume concludes with essays on the possibility for hope within the Christian Romanticism of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Thomas Carlyle and George MacDonald whose texts continue to cultivate a sense of wonder in new generations. Divided into five sections, essays by Ben Faber, Katherine Quinsey, Melora G. Vandersluis, Richard J. Lane, Natasha Duquette, Susan R. Bauman, Krista Lysack, Sandra Hagan, Roxanne Harde, Cheri Larsen.
