Detective Fiction And The Rise Of Forensic Science:

Detective Fiction and the Rise of Forensic Science Ronald R. Thomas, 1999 This is a book about the relationship between the development of forensic science in the nineteenth century and the invention of the new literary genre of detective fiction in Britain and America Ronald R Thomas examines the criminal body as a site of interpretation and enforcement in a wide range of fictional examples from Poe Dickens and Hawthorne through Twain and Conan Doyle to Hammett Chandler and Christie He is especially concerned with the authority the literary detective manages to secure through the devices fingerprinting photography lie detectors with which he discovers the truth and establishes his expertise and the way in which those devices relate to broader questions of cultural authority at decisive moments in the history of the genre This is an interdisciplinary project framing readings of literary texts with an analysis of contemporaneous developments in criminology the rules of evidence and modern scientific accounts of identity

Mystery, Murder and the Moorland. Devon-Spaces in British Detective Fiction of the 20th and 21st Century Cristina da Silva Ferreira, 2014-03-13 Examination Thesis from the year 2014 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Paderborn language English abstract This thesis will start with some general assumptions on spatiality in literature and outline its importance for detective fiction The focus will be on the concepts of space and place by de Certeau Lefebvre and Lotman Afterwards in the subchapter on the geographical and physical context crucial dichotomies of space which have an influence on detective novels will be examined especially the distinction between open and enclosed spaces The chapter that follows will deal with three concrete novels of different eras to explore the representation of Devon with regard to the specific dichotomy mentioned above Arthur Conan Doyle's The Hound of the Baskervilles 1902 and Agatha Christie's novel The Sittaford Mystery 1931 both depict Devon in the early and middle twentieth century while Simon Beckett's The Calling of the Grave 2010 shows a contemporary idea of how this region is perceived A comparative analysis of these three novels will follow in order to point out the similarities and differences of Devon spaces as well as to underline how they together create its overall image In this way this chapter shows that new inventions have only changed this location and its perception at the surface but not in its core Since there are many adaptations of Doyle's novel the fourth chapter will take a closer look at two medial representations of Devon and compare the literary with the medial space The popular film adaptation by Lanfield from 1939 and an episode of the BBC Series Sherlock a reimagining contemporary update of Doyle's classic will serve as examples Although many aspects of the adaptations could be compared to the novel the interest will primarily be in the cinematographic realisation of spaces

Furthermore the question of how far these spaces coincide with the image of Devon created by literature will be discussed. Subsequently the conclusion will finally summarise the findings of this thesis and suggest possibilities to expand the topic of British detective fiction and Devon spaces.

Mary Elizabeth Braddon Anne-Marie Beller, 2012-11-01 An important figure in the development of crime fiction Mary Elizabeth Braddon 1835-1915 wrote more than 80 novels, numerous plays, poems, essays and short stories and edited two magazines during her 55-year literary career. Her bestselling Lady Audley's Secret secured her reputation as a leading sensation novelist. Though critics called her work immoral, Braddon's novels influenced the detective fiction of the late Victorian period. With entries on all her published writing, characters, relationships and influences, and themes and contexts as well as numerous illustrations, a career chronology and a chronological and alphabetical listing of all of her works, this companion to Braddon's mystery fiction is the definitive reference on this provocative but overlooked writer.

A Counter-History of Crime Fiction Maurizio Ascari, 2007-09-05 Nominated for the Mystery Writers of America Edgar Awards, A Counter History of Crime Fiction takes a new look at the evolution of crime fiction, drawing on material from the Middle Ages up to the early Twentieth century when the genre was theoretically defined as detective fiction. Considering criminography as a system of inter-related even incestuous sub-genres, Maurizio Ascari explores the connections between modes of literature such as revenge tragedies and providential fictions, the gothic and the ghost story, urban mysteries and anarchist fiction, while taking into account the influence of pseudo-sciences such as mesmerism and criminal anthropology.

Nineteenth-century Literature, 2001 Contains articles which focus on a broad spectrum of significant figures in fiction, philosophy and criticism such as Austen, Carlyle, Dickens, Thackeray, the Brontës, Tennyson, Browning, Arnold, Emerson, Hawthorne, Thoreau, Whitman, Twain and Henry James.

Forgery in Nineteenth-Century Literature and Culture Sara Malton, 2009-02-15 In Forgery in Nineteenth Century Literature and Culture, Sara Malton insists that we fully account for the prominence of forgery in the nineteenth-century cultural imagination. Examining a range of works from Dickens to Wilde, she considers how social and legal contexts inform the shifting representation of the crime and its varied perpetrators throughout the nineteenth century. Distinct in its historical attentiveness, Forgery in Nineteenth Century Literature and Culture illuminates the breadth of cultural issues to which this crime of the first magnitude is linked.

A Narratological Approach to Lists in Detective Fiction Sarah J. Link, 2023-07-12 This open access book examines how the form of the list features as a tool for meaning making in the genre of detective fiction from the nineteenth to the twenty first century The book analyzes how both readers and detectives rely on listing as an ordering and structuring tool and highlights the crucial role that lists assume in the reading process It extends the boundaries of an emerging field dedicated to the study of lists in literature and caters to a newly revived interest in form and New Formalist approaches in narratological research The central aim of this book is to show how detective fiction makes use of lists in order to frame various conceptions of knowledge The frames created by these lists are crucial to decoding the texts and they can be used to demonstrate how readers can be engaged in the act of detection or manipulated into accepting certain propositions in the text Z.
