

STAGES OF A CRIME INVESTIGATION: FROM PROBING THE CRIME SCENE TO PROSECUTING IN THE COURTROOM

Investigating a crime involves many processes carried out by a variety of professionals. Those stages can be categorized into three broad groups: on the scene of the crime, at the lab and in the courtroom.

ON THE SCENE AND IMMEDIATELY AFTER

Police officers are usually the first on the scene, where they may stop a crime in progress and apprehend offenders or suspects. If the crime was already committed, law enforcement personnel try to piece together exactly what happened.

Either way, they follow a process to gather evidence in support of a criminal charge and conviction.

POLICE OFFICERS MAY:

Stop a crime in progress

Apprehend offenders or suspects

Locate and question witnesses at the scene

Secure the scene

Crime scene investigators sometimes assist police officers or detectives in documenting the crime scene and gathering evidence.

A CSI, also called a forensic investigator or evidence technician, may be an experienced law enforcement officer or a civilian specifically trained in forensic science.

Detective Work A Study Of Criminal Investigations:

Detective Work William B. Sanders, 1977 Day by day detective work is studied using case histories to detail actual problems involved in finding and interpreting information emphasis is given to juvenile burglary and major crime bureaus The main focus of this book is the relationship between information and decisions as encountered in actual investigations The relationship between data and information or when does a fact become a clue is explored through a number of case histories The role of the patrol report in initiating investigations the role of the detective bureau in initiating its own investigations and the relationship between the detective bureau and the rest of the department are detailed Case histories also explore the special techniques used by successful investigators to identify locate and arrest suspects and to get them to admit guilt Special problems arise when dealing with victims of major crimes Much has been written about the need for understanding when dealing with rape victims the same understanding is also needed for victims of robberies assaults and other serious offenses The special problems of the juvenile bureau and the routine of the burglary bureau are also examined The role of intuition and subjective investigation as well as the fact in successful crime solving is explored Appendixes give forms used in the study a bibliography and an index

Detective Work William B. Sanders, 1979-12 Making Crime Richard Victor Ericson, 1993 A Review of Detective Work: A Study of Criminal Investigations JW. Osterburg, 1979 The author a sociologist spent a year as a participant observer studying detectives at work in a county sheriff's office The result is the best writing about criminal investigation this reviewer has read It stands in direct and favorable contrast to the regrettable study released in 1975 by the Rand Corporation of The Criminal Investigation Process Sanders work a major contribution to the literature is a typical piece of good academic yet practical research the kind that seldom seems to be supported by the federal government On the other hand the half million dollar funding of the Rand Study by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration resulted in a product that charitably can be described as less than memorable

Moving the Work of Criminal Investigators Towards Crime Control Anthony Allan Braga, 2011 This paper points out the challenges to police executives in moving the work of criminal investigators towards a more active role in crime control The paper provides research on the effectiveness of criminal investigators the problem oriented approach to crime control and intelligence led policing The authors suggest ways to allocate proactive and problem solving work between criminal investigators and patrol officers The paper concludes with examples by the authors of moving the work of criminal investigators at the Milwaukee Police Department the New York Police Department the Victoria Police in Australia and police agencies in the United Kingdom Governing Science is one of a series of papers that are being published as a result of the second Executive Session on Policing and Public Safety a collaboration of NIJ and Harvard Kennedy School's Program in Criminal Justice Policy and Management Publisher's website
