Developing Writers A Dialogic Approach:

Developing Writers Pamela Gay, 1992-01-01 This workshop approach engages developing writers in a dialogue with the selections they read with other writers with themselves and ultimately with the audience they write for Through the use of written and spoken dialogues students learn to develop their writing skills

A Think-Aloud Approach to Writing

Assessment Sarah Beck, 2018 The think aloud approach to classroom writing assessment is designed to expand teachers perspectives on adolescent students as writers and help them integrate instruction and assessment in a timely way Emphasizing learning over evaluation it is especially well suited to revealing students strengths and helping them overcome common challenges to writing such as writer s block or misunderstanding of the writing task Through classroom examples Sarah Beck describes how to implement the think aloud method and shows how this method is flexible and adaptable to any writing assignment and classroom context The book also discusses the significance of the method in relation to best practices in formative assessment including how to plan think aloud sessions with students to gain the most useful information Teachers required to use rubrics or other standardized assessment tools can incorporate the more individualized think aloud approach into their practice without sacrificing the rigor and consistency more regulated approaches require Details how both students and teachers can benefit from engaging in this practice and does so in ways that allow readers to adapt it to their own situations Peter Smagorinsky University of Georgia This is the first truly new way of thinking about assessing writing that I have encountered in a long time Heidi L Andrade University at Albany SUNY An invaluable guide for using think aloud formative assessments to gain insight into student writing development Every high school and college writing instructor should read it Amanda J Godley University of Pittsburgh

Developing Multilingual Writing

Hiroe Kobayashi, Carol Rinnert, 2023-02-14 With millions of people becoming multilingual writers in the globalized digital world this book helps to empower writers to connect with their readers and project their identities effectively across languages social contexts and genres In a series of closely related studies that build on each other we look comprehensively at how writers develop their ability to construct meaning for different audiences in multiple languages This book which draws on various approaches including a social view of writing multicompetence adaptive transfer complex systems theory motivation and translanguageing contributes to on going efforts to integrate differing approaches to multilingual writing research This book focusses on how writer agency control over text construction audience awareness ability to meet expectations of prospective readers and writer identity projection of image of the writer in the text progress as multilingual writers gain more experience across languages The within writer cross sectional text analysis Chapters 2 5 examines 185 essays written in Japanese and English by eight groups of writers from novice to advanced N 103 supplemented by insights from these writers reflections We explore how they employ three kinds of text features discourse types metadiscourse and self representation which relate to their developing agency audience and writer identity in their text construction and propose a new model for writer voice construction based on those features The four case studies Chapters 6-9 focus on five university students and six professionals to examine closely how individual writers agency audience and identity are interrelated in their text construction in two or three languages and diverse genres including academic and creative writing The combined studies provide new insights into multilingual writing development by revealing the close interrelationship among these three principal aspects of writing across languages They also demonstrate the writers multi directional use of dynamic transfer reuse and reshaping for L1 L2 and L3 text construction and the use of mixed languages L1 L2 or L1 L3 translanguaging for composing processes in addition to the creative power of multilingual writers One significant contribution of this book is to provide models of innovative ways to analyze text and new directions for writing research that go beyond complexity accuracy and fluency Categories and detailed examples of text features used for writer voice construction e.g specific characteristics of Personal Emergent and Mature Voice are helpful for writing teachers and for developing writers to improve ways of conveying their own intended writer identity to the reader The studies break new ground by extending our analysis of L2 writing to the same writers L1 and L3 writing and multiple genres
