Development Anthropology Hari Mohan Mathur, 2019-05-13 In Development Anthropology Putting Culture First Hari

Mohan Mathur highlights the role of culture and anthropological work more broadly in development outcomes

Anthropologists contributions in this area have traditionally received little attention but this changed when the World Bank released the 2015 World Development Report This report focused on the social cultural and psychological influences which affect the development process and like Mathur stressed the criticality of anthropological and other social sciences knowledge for the success of development efforts A major contribution to development anthropology this book will interest anthropologists economists sociologists other social scientists policy makers planners development practitioners researchers and trainers and will be particularly useful for graduate students planning their career in the field of development Ideas and Trends in World Anthropology Charles Frantz, 1981 Anthropology, Public Policy, and Native Peoples in Canada

Noel Dyck, James B. Waldrum, 1993-03-02 The essays in Anthropology Public Policy and Native Peoples in Canada provide a comprehensive evaluation of past present and future forms of anthropological involvement in public policy issues that affect

Native peoples in Canada The contributing authors who include social scientists and politicians from both Native and non Native backgrounds use their experience to assess the theory and practice of anthropological participation in and observation of relations between aboriginal peoples and governments in Canada They trace the strengths and weaknesses of traditional forms of anthropological fieldwork and writing as well as offering innovative solutions to some of the challenges confronting anthropologists working in this domain In addition to Noel Dyck and James Waldrum the contributing authors are

Peggy Martin Brizinski Julie Cruikshank Peter Douglas Elias Julia D Harrison Ron Ignace Joseph M Kaufert Patricia Leyland

and Sally M Weaver Knowledge Partnering for Community Development Robyn Eversole, 2014-10-17 Effective community development means that many different stakeholders have to work together governments development organizations and

NGOs and most importantly the people they serve Knowledge Partnering for Community Development teaches community development professionals how to mediate community needs and development agendas to make community based solutions for development challenges Based on the newest research in community and global development Eversole shows readers a strong research and theoretically based framework for understanding local development processes and gives them the skills to turn this into cutting edge practice Each chapter features global case studies of innovative community state partnerships and practical application exercises and strategies for professionals looking to bring new approaches to their research

Knowledge Partnering for Community Development is essential for community workers and students of community development looking to bridge the gap between research insight and best practice between community actors     Training Manual in Development Anthropology William L. Partridge, 1984     Parts and Wholes Laila Prager, Michael Prager, Guido Sprenger, 2016 This festschrift for Josephus D M Platenkamp brings some central concerns of anthropology into focus social morphology exchange cosmology history and practical applications Ranging across several disciplines and continents but with a preference for Southeast Asia the contributions look at a common approach that unites these diverse themes In this view the most constitutive relationships of society are based on exchange Exchange and ritual articulate central values of a society thus appearing as parts in relationship to a whole These relationships encompass both human and non human beings the social and the cosmological domain Thus the study of these subject issues merges into a single project Series Anthropology Research and Science Ethnologie Forschung und Wissenschaft Vol 27 Subject Anthropology     Development Theory Jan Nederveen Pieterse, 2010 Written by one of the leading authorities in the field the Second Edition of this successful book Situates students in the expanding field of development theory Provides an unrivalled guide to the strengths and weaknesses of competing theoretical approaches Explains key concepts Examines the shifts in theory Offers an agenda for the future In this book the author brings a huge range of experience and knowledge about the relationship between the economically advanced and the emerging developing nations     Anthropology in the Development Process Hari Mohan Mathur, Christoph von Fürer-Haimendorf, 1977     Development from Below, 1976     Codesria Bulletin, 2002

Planned Change Elizabeth Colson, 1988 This paper was first delivered as the Bernard Memorial Lecture at the University of California Berkeley The author a distinguished anthropologist begins by examining the multinational development community and its relationship or lack thereof with Third World communities In her search for understanding the fact that the record of international assistance in the Third World is anything but satisfactory the author traces her own involvement with voluntary aid programs since 1946 and the various trends that appeared and disappeared Her first point is that there are fundamental differences between rural people and development workers about the assumptions behind the meaning of development She gives several examples to show that local people and foreign assistance personnel work often at cross purposes For example she states that development personnel frequently look to self help schemes to provide the impetus for an infrastructure believing that once people see the advantages gained from working together they will move forward progressively this turns out to be wishful thinking One of the most striking discoveries she made in the course of a study for the Berkeley Decentralization Project was that much of this information was already known to members of the development community and that knowing it made no difference since this knowledge goes against the working premises of the development community and interferes with existing career patterns Examples are given to show that social scientists who are hired are expected to tailor advice so it integrates with the prevailing mode of operation of the agency that employs them The development community is thus seen as a well entrenched community which functions like any other bureaucracy insuring itself against rapid change The author shows how the spread of consensus among the various agencies is the result of a close knit international network that transcends the boundaries of the voluntary bilateral and multilateral agencies Her conclusion is that the result of most of the activities of the development community revolve around the community itself and are far removed from hunger poverty and despair of so many people in the countries that receive aid      South Asian Anthropologist ,2005      Anthropology and Development in Traditional Societies Hari Mohan Mathur,1989      Journal of Social Development in Africa ,1987      The Cultural Dimensions of Global Change Lourdes Arizpe S.,1996 An overview of current issues in cultural analysis and a fresh perspective for exploring the boundaries of the new global order Also specific aspects of culture and development in different regions gender in the Caribbean ethnicity in Eastern Europe environment in Canada television in the Mediterranean and development in Africa as well as the role of multidisciplinary and international research programmes      The Human Factor in Rural Development Tom Gabriel,1991      The Bulletin of the Department of Anthropology, Dibrugarh University Dibrugarh University.
