

A black and white photograph of a tropical landscape. In the foreground, a person is crouching on a sandy or light-colored ground, possibly a beach or a clearing, with two woven baskets nearby. The middle ground features several palm trees. The background shows a dense, hilly forest. The overall scene is serene and naturalistic.

Development Crisis And Class Struggle Learning From Japan And East Asia:

Development, Crisis, and Class Struggle Paul Burkett, Martin Hart-Landsberg, 2000-06-03 East Asia has long been the focus of development debates first as a success story and now as a region in crisis. Nonetheless, there has been little if any serious discussion of what the region's experience tells us about capitalism and the prospects for non-capitalist development alternatives more centered on the needs of workers and communities. Development Crisis and Class Struggle fills this gap.

Labour and Development in East Asia Kevin Gray, 2014-10-10 The Chinese Communist Party's response to the wave of factory strikes in the early summer of 2010 has raised important questions about the role that labour plays in the transformation of world orders. In contrast to previous policies of repression towards labour unrest, these recent disputes centring round wages and working conditions have been met with a more permissive response on the part of the state as the CCP ostensibly seeks to facilitate a transition away from a model of political economy based on low road labour relations and export dependence. Labour and Development in East Asia shows that such inter-linkages between labour, geopolitical transformations and states' developmental strategies have been much more central to East Asia's development than has commonly been recognised. By adopting an explanatory framework of the labour-geopolitics-development nexus, the book theorises and provides an historical analysis of the formation and transformation of the East Asian regional political economy from the end of the Second World War to the present, with particular reference to Japan, South Korea, Taiwan and China. This book will be required reading for students and scholars of international relations, development studies and comparative politics.

Marxist Perspectives on South Korea in the Global Economy Martin Hart-Landsberg, Seongjin Jeong, Westra Richard, 2017-03-02 This volume brings together work by international scholars to provide a unique analysis of the past, present and possible future trajectory of Korea's political economy from a distinctly Marxist perspective. The volume differentiates the Marxian approach to the political economy of Korean development from the Keynesian social democratic approach that currently dominates the critical literature. In doing so, the volume provides a unique view of the development of the South Korean Economy.

Economic Crisis and Financial Reform in Japan and Korea Wangsik Kim, 2003 Japan and Korea's economic crises after two decades of unprecedented success and subsequent differences in their reform paths have drawn a great deal of scholarly attention. Nonetheless, these studies are devoted to the descriptions of the current problems in Japan and Korea and prescriptions for them or lean heavily toward economic explanations with politics playing an auxiliary role. Departing from these points of view, this dissertation tried to examine why two countries with similar developmental patterns have taken different paths with the wave of globalization and ensuing economic crises. Based on historical institutionalism and the model of altered states, the study argues that institutional ties among the executives, bureaucracy and business became formidable constraints and political challenges for the political executives in Japan and Korea to reform their problem-ridden economies. In order to effectively implement the study, this dissertation identifies three crucial factors:

first international or domestic events that provide political executives with opportunities for potential transformation second political executives that utilize these opportunities for transformation third institutional context that allows or limits them to initiate and implement structural reforms Building on this framework I argue that the degree of structural reform in a country depends on the political executive's position in their institutional context which shapes their preferences and goals of the political executives in the decision making process and constrains their capacity for specific policy outputs Korean President's position within his structural context strengthened his capacity to act on his preferences The less constrained power of the executive in Korea could direct or encourage the bureaucracy to take much bolder steps toward economic reform than in Japan In the case of Japan institutional changes prove to be more difficult and tedious than in Korea The Japanese prime minister became even more constrained to execute financial reform and provide economic transparency following the split of ruling Liberal Democratic Party LDP in 1993 Capitalist Development in Korea Dae-oup

Chang,2009-01-13 Contrary to the widely held view that the East Asian developmental state is neutral in terms of the relationship between capital and labour this book argues that the developmental state exists to promote the interests of capital over labour and there has been a deliberate mystification concerning the reality of this process Turbulence and New Directions in Global Political Economy J. Busumtwi-Sam,L. Dobuzinskis,2002-11-26 James Busumtwi Sam and Laurent Dobuzinskis have assembled a leading team of experts in the field to examine how phenomena associated with globalization impact on political economy in theory and in practice The volume employs a variety of theoretical and analytical approaches to examine the very changeable nature of the global political economy in terms of academic analysis policy and practice

Globalisation Tony Smith,2005-12-01 Part One of this book examines the social state neoliberal catalytic state and democratic cosmopolitan models of globalisation Each necessarily tends to function in a manner contradicting essential claims made by its leading advocates This immanent contradiction provides a theoretical warrant for moving to a new position addressing the shortcomings of the previous framework The first three chapters of Part Two are devoted to a Marxian model of capitalist globalisation in which the irresolvable contradictions and social antagonisms of the capitalist global order are explicitly recognised The final chapter is devoted to a Marxian model of socialist globalisation in which those contradictions and antagonisms are overcome bringing the systematic dialectic of globalisation to a close Comparative Economics in a Transforming World Economy John Barkley Rosser,2004 The second edition of an innovative undergraduate textbook in Comparative Economic Systems that goes beyond the traditional dichotomies Globalization Gernot Kohler,Emilio José Chaves,2003 The majority of people around the world are experiencing oppressive and destructive forces which manifest themselves in starvation income polarisation joblessness stress violence and so on What is the nature of these forces If we call them globalisation can there be good globalisation as well as bad globalisation Is this a new phenomenon or just a continuation of history as it has always been This book brings together a wide range of expertise addressing these problems from a world systems perspective      Journal of Economic Literature ,2000      Human Rights in Asia and the Pacific James T. Lawrence,2004 The existence of human rights helps secure the peace deter aggression promote the rule of law combat crime and corruption and prevent humanitarian crises These human rights include freedom from torture freedom of expression press freedom women s rights children s rights and the protection of minorities This book surveys the countries of Asia and the Pacific and is augmented by a current bibliography and useful indexes by subject title and author CONTENTS Preface Part I Australia Brunei Burma Cambodia China Taiwan only China includes Tibet Hong Kong and Macau East Timor Fiji Indonesia Japan Kiribati Democratic People s Republic of Korea Republic of Korea Laos Malaysia Marshall Islands Federated States of Micronesia Mongolia Nauru New Zealand Palau Papua New Guinea Philippines Samoa Singapore Solomon Islands Thailand Tonga Tuvalu Vanuatu Vietnam Afghanistan Bangladesh Bhutan India Maldives Nepal Pakistan Sri Lanka Part II Special Bibliography Part III Indexes by Subject Title and Author      The Cold War and the New Imperialism Henry Heller,2006-07 The Cold War and the New Imperialism is an account of global history since 1945 which brings massive changes in global politics economics and society together in a single narrative illuminating and clarifying the dilemmas of the present Written for the general reader it draws together scholarly research from a wide range of sources without losing sight of the larger pattern of events In the sixty year period since the end of World War II the world has indeed been remade The war itself mobilized the political and social aspirations of hundreds of millions of people The contest between the United States and the Soviet Union for global dominance drew every country into its field of force Struggles for national liberation in the Third World brought an end to colonial empires Revolutions in China Cuba Vietnam and elsewhere shook the global order as did failed uprisings in Paris and Prague Since the end of the Cold War the forces of the capitalist market have overwhelmed social institutions that have given meaning to human existence for centuries But the end of the Cold War has created as many problems for the world s remaining superpower the United States as it has solved With its political economic and financial hegemony eroding the United States has responded with military adventures abroad and increasing inequality and authoritarianism at home The Cold War and the New Imperialism draws all these threads together and shows vividly that the end of history is not in sight      Asian Perspective ,2004 Journal of international development      Journal of Development Alternatives and Area Studies ,2002      *G.K.
