Strategic and System Thinking. Practice of a Strategy Sixbert Sangwa,2021-06-08 Academic Paper from the year 2017 in the subject Business economics Miscellaneous grade 80 University of South Wales Business School course Strategic Systems Thinking Tools and Techniques language English abstract This essay serves as a critical appraise of the statement Systems thinking essentially seeks to understand phenomena as a whole formed by the interaction of parts in relation to changing ideas of strategic thinking It explains how this statement exists within the author s business approach to strategic management The key themes addressed consist of an analysis of approaches to strategic thinking systems thinking complexity perspective especially the new ways of thinking about strategy complex adaptive systems especially Modelling Complexity and The Practice Perspective Today s business environment is complex dynamic multi faceted and the environment has a far reaching impact As for other organizations the author s company s environment is a combination of several factors that surround and affect it Therefore the management of such environment requires managers to carry out a careful analysis of the entire environment to have a clear understanding on how to position the firm in the industry based on fitting the strategy to the current business environment The implication is that business managers should scan both the internal and external environment to adopt develop strategies that they think will make their businesses successful One of the biggest breakthroughs in how we understand and guide change in our organizations is systems theory and systems thinking System thinking and strategic thinking are two interrelated terms that deal with examining patterns and lead to decision making and the planning for execution at the organizational level To understand how both strategic and system thinking are used in organizations it will be clearly defined what systems are To be able to evaluate strategic system thinking and systems tools in an organization both strategies and systems need to be explicitly defined This will also lead to an analysis of the complexity of organizational system

Developing Strategic Thinking Leaders in the United States

Army Brian S. Eifler, Army War College (U.S.), 2012 Due to the volatile uncertain complex and ambiguous VUCA environment that Army leaders face at the strategic level effective senior leaders require the ability to apply strategic thinking Key elements that develop strategic thinking skills are undervalued in the current officer development timeline and a change in culture must occur in how the Army educates promotes and develops its Officer Corps Without formally recognizing the value of developing strategic thinking officers the Army will continue to fall short in effectively developing officers for the strategic level Without innovation in how we develop strategic thinkers the Officer Corps as a profession will be at risk The Army must develop a strategy that changes the value and culture of how it develops its officer strategic thinking skills skills necessary at all levels but required at the senior level This author proposes a strategy that focuses on three key areas of officer development that must be revamped 1 Professional Military Education PME and institutional education 2 assignments and 3 promotions and timelines Changes in these three areas are necessary if the Army is to develop effective senior leaders that thrive in the uncertain and complex future

After Clausewitz Antulio J. Echevarria (II), Antulio Joseph Echevarria, 2000 But Echevarria disputes this traditional view and convincingly shows that these theorists Boguslawski Goltz Schlieffen Hoening and their American and European counterparts were not the architects of outmoded theories In fact they duly appreciated the implications of the vast advances in modern weaponry as well as in transportation and communications and set about finding solutions that would restore offensive maneuver to the battlefield
