Multicellular organisms require a means of intracellular communication to organize and develop the complex body plan that occurs during embryogenesis and then for cell and organ systems to access and respond to an ever changing environmental milieu Mediators of this constant exchange of information are growth factors neurotransmitters peptide and protein hormones which bind to cell surface receptors and transduce their signals from the extracellular space to the intracellular compartment Via multiple signaling pathways receptors of this general class affect growth development and differentiation Smaller hydrophobic signaling molecules such as steroids and non steroid hormones vitamins and metabolic mediators interact with a large family of nuclear receptors These receptors function as transcription factors affecting gene expression to regulate the multiple aspects of animal and human physiology including development reproduction and homeostasis The aim of this book is to cover various aspects of intracellular signaling involving hormone receptors Identification of Bovine Growth Hormone Receptor in Fetal Lymphoid Cells and Effects of Growth Hormone on Fetal Immune Development and Function Huang-Tsu Chen, 1996 Hormones and Growth Factors in Development and Neoplasia Robert B. Dickson, David S. Salomon, 1998-05-06 Hormones and Growth Factors in Development and Neoplasia Edited by Robert B Dickson Lombardi Cancer Research Center Georgetown University David S Salomon Laboratory of Tumor Immunology and Biology National Cancer Institute NIH The study of hormones is critical to our understanding of developmental aberrations leading to cancer and the discovery of polypeptide growth factors has led to profound insights into the duality of control of development and cancer by hormones at the tissue and cellular levels In this book leading researchers in the field present a cohesive overview of several important growth factor systems and how they interact with endocrine hormones in the context of tissue tissue interactions control of cellular growth differentiation and death and reciprocal control of receptors and ligands at the molecular level In its first two sections Hormones and Growth Factors in Development and Neoplasia introduces important growth factors and hormonal systems in invertebrate and amphibian model systems highlights early evolutionary and developmental functions for the classes of molecules later shown to be important in human cancer establishes the roles of growth factors and hormones in mammalian development and focuses on early embryonic events and later events leading to sexual dimorphism The book s third section discusses in detail the control of postnatal developmental processes in male and female reproductive tracts focusing on the prostate and mammary glands as well as the female reproductive tract all of
