Leading Professional Development Mary H. Moen,Sarah A. Buchanan,2020-11-04 This book shows how LIS schools and professional organizations can help information professionals to continue their education after finishing formal programs to keep up with the growing demands of the field As technology rapidly advances the need for continuing education increases at an accelerating rate Within 10 12 years of completing formal education most information professionals knowledge and skills become out of date leaving them only half as able to meet the new demands of the profession. Additionally, the increase in online education programs for LIS students can limit their connection with practicing professionals and in some locations their engagement with diverse populations. LIS schools and professional development organizations however can support professional development in new and exciting ways. Readers will learn how faculty in LIS schools are innovating their courses and providing continuing education experiences. Taking advantage of the benefits of online digital and experiential learning projects, they are creating meaningful collaborative learning opportunities between students and practitioners in the field. The book also addresses how social media tools can help online students experience interactive community learning and network within the profession before they start their positions.

The Professional Development of Teacher Educators Tony Bates, Anja Swennen, Ken Jones, 2014-12-18. This book makes a significant contribution to a hitherto much neglected area. The book brings together a wide range of papers on a scale rarely seen with a geographic spread that enhances our understanding of the complex journey undertaken by those who aspire to become teachers of teachers. The authors from more than ten countries use a variety of approaches including narrative life history, self study and empirical research to demonstrate the complexity of the transformative search by individuals to establish their professional identity as teacher educators. The book offers fundamental and thoughtful critiques of current policy practice and examples of established structures specifically supporting the professional development of teacher educators that may well have a wider applicability. Many of the authors are active and leading persons in the international fields of teacher education and of professional development. The book considers novice teacher educators' issues of transition, identity development including research identity, the facilitation and mentoring of teacher educators' self study research including collaborative writing, use of stories, professional development within the context of curriculum and structural reform. Becoming a teacher is recognised as a transformative search by individuals for their teaching identities. Becoming a teacher educator often involves a more complex and longer journey but according to the many travel stories told here, one that can be a deeply satisfying experience. This book was published as a special issue of Professional Development in Education.

CPD for the Career Development Professional Siobhan Neary, Claire Johnson, 2016-10-14. The career development sector is continually evolving in line with changes in society, technology and the needs of clients. Maintaining and developing the skills and knowledge to practise effectively in any part of the sector is a cornerstone of professional practice. Yet in straitened times, the funding and time to undertake Continuous Professional Development can be difficult to find. This unique handbook contextualises CPD for the sector, examines why it is important and to whom it offers practical insights on practitioner research and reflective practice and then provides a wealth of information on the many ways in which CPD can be undertaken by both those who are employed and self employed. With many practical activities, reflection points and case studies throughout readers will be able to identify their own needs and develop CPD solutions that will support them in developing skills and knowledge to further enhance their own practice For practitioners who want to own and direct their professional development this is a must read guide
