Simple Youtube Automation Channel For American Readers:

Transmedia/Genre Matthew Freeman, Anthony N. Smith, 2023-02-05 This book brings genre back to the forefront of the current transmedia trend. Genres are perhaps the most innately transmedial of media constructs formed as they are from all kinds of industrial, technological, and discursive phenomena. Yet few have considered how genre works in a multiplatform context. This book does precisely that, making a uniquely transmedial contribution to the study of genre in the age of media convergence. The book interrogates how industrial, technological, and participatory transformations of digital platforms and emerging technologies reshape workings of genre. The authors consider franchises such as Star Wars, streaming platforms such as Netflix, catch-up services such as ITV Hub, creative technologies such as virtual reality, and beyond. In setting the stage for the revival of genre theory in contemporary transmedia scholarship, this book pushes forward understandings of multiplatform media and the emerging form and function of genre across contemporary culture.

Life after New Media Sarah Kember, Joanna Zylinska, 2014-12-05 An argument for a shift in understanding new media from a fascination with devices to an examination of the complex processes of mediation. In Life after New Media, Sarah Kember and Joanna Zylinska make a case for a significant shift in our understanding of new media. They argue that we should move beyond our fascination with objects: computers, smart phones, iPods, Kindles, to an examination of the interlocking technical, social, and biological processes of mediation. Doing so, they say, reveals that life itself can be understood as mediated, subject to the same processes of reproduction, transformation, flattening, and patenting undergone by other media forms. By Kember and Zylinska's account, the dispersal of media and technology into our biological and social lives intensifies our entanglement with nonhuman entities. Mediation, all encompassing and indivisible, becomes for them a key trope for understanding our being in the technological world. Drawing on the work of Bergson and Derrida while displaying a rigorous playfulness toward philosophy, Kember and Zylinska examine the multiple flows of mediation. Importantly, they also consider the ethical necessity of making a cut to any media processes in order to contain them. Considering topics that range from media enacted cosmic events to the intelligent home, they propose a new way of doing media studies that is simultaneously critical and creative and that performs an encounter between theory and practice.

Sound and Affect Judith Lochhead, Eduardo Mendieta, Stephen Decatur Smith, 2021-04-23 Studies of affect and emotions have blossomed in recent decades across the humanities, neurosciences, and social sciences. In music scholarship, they have often built on the discipline's attention to what music theorists since the Renaissance have described as music's unique ability to arouse passions in listeners. In this timely volume, the editors seek to combine this affective turn with the sound turn in the humanities, which has profitably shifted attention from the visual to the aural, as well as a more recent philosophical turn in music studies. Accordingly, the volume maps out a new territory for research at the intersection of music philosophy and sound studies. The essays in Sound and Affect look at objects and experiences in which correlations of sound and affect reside in music and beyond: the voice as it speaks, stutters, cries, or sings.

music whether vocal instrumental or electronic our sonic environments whether natural or man made and our responses to them As argued here far from being stable correlations of sound and affect are influenced by factors as diverse as race class gender and social and political experience Examining these factors is key to the project which gathers contributions from a cross disciplinary roster of scholars including both established as well as a wealth of new voices The essays are grouped thematically into sections that move from politics and ethics to reflections on pre and post human musicking to the notions of affective listening and music temporalities to are examination of historical understandings of music and affect This agenda setting collection will prove indispensable to anyone interested in innovative approaches to the study of sound and its many intersection with affect and emotions
