reproduction Shiamin Kwa's Perfect Copies reminds us that the mode of production and the manner in which we perceive comics are often quite similar to the stories they tell. Perfect Copies considers the dual notions of reproduction mechanical as well as biological and explores how comics are works of reproduction that embed questions about the nature of reproduction itself. Through close readings of the comics My Favorite Thing Is Monsters by Emil Ferris, The Black Project by Gareth Brookes, The Generous Bosom series by Conor Stechschulte, Sabrina by Nick Drnaso and Panther by Brecht Evens, Perfect Copies shows how these comics makers push the limits of different ideas of reproduction in strikingly different ways. Kwa suggests that reading and thinking about books like these that push us to engage with these complicated questions teaches us how to become better readers.

Telling Science Stories Martin W. Angler, 2020-03-13 A practical manual for anyone who wants to turn scientific facts into gripping science stories, this book provides an overview of story elements and structure, guidance on where to locate them in scientific papers, and a step by step guide to applying storytelling techniques to writing about science. In this book, Martin W. Angler outlines basic storytelling elements to show how and where fledgling science storytellers can find them in scientific output. Journalistic techniques like selection through news values and narrative interviews are covered in dedicated chapters. A variety of writing techniques and approaches are presented as a way of framing science stories in ways that are informative and compelling in different media, from short films to news articles. Practical examples, selected interviews, and case studies complement each chapter with exercises and experimentation suggestions included for deeper understanding. Review questions at the end of each chapter cement the newly gained knowledge to make sure readers absorb it with links to articles and online tools inviting further reading. A valuable resource for students of journalism and science communication as well as professional journalists, scientists, and scientists in training who want to engage with the public or simply improve their journal papers. This book is a one stop shop on science storytelling with a clear focus on providing practical techniques and advice on how to thrive as science writers and communicate science in all of its complexity.

The Utne Reader, 1995 Loose-leaf Version for Media Essentials Richard Campbell, Christopher Martin, 2015-10-28 Media Essentials focuses on the most pivotal aspects of mass communication and its new edition is more effective than ever at helping students understand the everchanging mass media landscape. The Advertising and Consumer Culture Reader Joseph Turow, Matthew P. McAllister, 2009 Commercial breaks, radio spots, product placements, billboards, pop up ads, we sometimes take for granted how much advertising surrounds us in our daily lives. We may find ads funny, odd, or even disturbing, but we rarely stop to consider their deeper meaning or function within society. What exactly does advertising do? How and why do ads influence us? How does the advertising industry influence our media? These are just a few of the many important questions addressed in The Advertising and Consumer Culture Reader, an incisive, provocative collection that assembles twenty-seven of the most important scholarly writings on advertising and consumer culture to date. The classic and contemporary essays gathered here explore the past, present, and future of advertising from the early days of print to the World Wide Web and beyond. These selections offer historical, sociological, critical, cultural, and political-economic lenses to explore a wide range of topics from consumer activism to globalization to the role of ads in the political process. Together, these key readings chart the past, present, and future of advertising while also examining the effects of advertising and consumer culture upon individuals, society, cultures, and the world at large. Designed for use in courses, the collection begins with a general introduction that orients students to thinking critically about advertising and consumer culture. Section and chapter introductions offer valuable historical and critical context, while review questions after each reading will spark classroom debates and challenge students' understanding of key concepts.

The Meaning of Myth in Uncertain Times Evelien Bracke, 2025-12-29 This book examines how ancient mythology forms part of the stories we tell ourselves about today's uncertain times, not only in popular culture but also in sociocultural and political debates. It particularly explores the ways in which classical myths shape how our modern, secular societies think about the interconnected geopolitical, technological, and ecological issues we are facing and our potential futures. Classical myths like those of Achilles, Medea, and Odysseus are everywhere, from films and novels to social media and games. But how and why are we still fascinated with them, particularly now? Can these strange and often painful stories from societies so radically different from our own offer us genuine insights today? This expanded English edition of Evelien Bracke's award-winning Dutch book Leidraad door het labirint explores how and why Greek and Roman myths, despite their ancient origins, are surprisingly meaningful in these times of uncertainty. Bracke offers a contextualization and literary analysis of classical mythology, looking at both texts and visual media. This allows readers to gain a better understanding of how people draw inspiration from the past in their attempt to create a better future and how these stories provide both collective and individual guidance in navigating the turbulent 21st century. The Meaning of Myth in Uncertain Times is suitable for students, scholars, teachers, and general readers interested in mythology and ancient Greek and Roman history and culture, providing insights that are relevant to the challenges we all face today.
