Abstract

1999

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years old, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of six women who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of six women who exercised for 12 weeks. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The HR and EE of the exercise group were significantly higher than those of the control group at the end of the 12-week training program. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
