Arif examines theories of political and social development that have been presented to the non-Western world as scientific theories which represent the only valid paradigm. Through a multi-method approach, the epistemological, cultural, socio-political and economical dimensions of development are deeply analyzed. 21st Century Political Science: A Reference Handbook John T. Investing in Development Theodore Harvey Moran, Excellent and exceptionally timely Foreign Affairs. This volume surveys current views in the debate about the impact of foreign direct investment on Third World development on growth, employment, exports, technology and distribution of income. It examines whether the efforts of less developed countries to attract and control multinational corporations have constituted a serious distortion of trade that threatens jobs in the home nations. It provides new studies of foreign investment in agriculture and in the least developed states. It looks at the threat of transmitting environmental pollution. And it analyzes the link between international companies and the umbrella of World Bank cofinancing as a mechanism to reduce risk. Finally, it attempts to estimate how much of the gap in commercial bank lending might plausibly be filled by direct corporate investment over the next decade.

Cultural Perspectives on Development Vincent Tucker, 2014-06-23 What does cultural analysis have to offer development studies? Is culture a new paradigm for the study of development or a minefield of theoretical confusion? Can we move beyond notions of global culture and local culture to a more refined notion of cultural processes? This collection of articles addresses these issues, providing a diversity of approaches. Two themes in particular run through the contributions: the relationship between culture and political economy and the relationship between local and global processes. Introduction to Comparative Politics John David Nagle, 1992
