

A vintage movie poster for the film 'Der Glastepp'. The top half of the poster features a color illustration of a man and a woman in a romantic pose. The woman, on the left, is looking up at the man, who is on the right, looking down at her. They are both smiling. The woman has dark, wavy hair and is wearing a light-colored dress. The man has dark hair and is wearing a dark jacket. The background is a desert landscape with reddish-brown mountains and a hazy sky. The title 'Der Glastepp' is written in a large, stylized, red font with a white outline. The word 'Der' is smaller and positioned above 'Glastepp'.

Heimat - A German Dream Elizabeth Boa, Rachel Palfreyman, 2000-09-21 The discourse of Heimat meaning homeland or roots has been a medium of debate on German identity between region and nation for at least a century Four phases parallel Germany's discontinuous history Heimat literature as a response to modernization and to regional tensions before the First World War the inter war period when Heimat divided into racist ideology left wing opposition and inner resistance to the Third Reich a post war dialectic between escapist 1950s Heimat films and right wing claims to the lost lands in the East to which anti Heimat theatre and films in the 1960s and 1970s were a response with the urban Heimat in GDR films adding a socialist twist regionalism and green politics in the 1980s and German identity beyond Cold War divisions A key point of reference in current debates on German history Heimat looks likely to continue in postmodern and multicultural mode

Smith collections Port Elizabeth Public Library (Port Elizabeth, South Africa), 1906 Der Klosterjäger Ludwig Ganghofer, 1893 No Place Like Home Johannes von Moltke, 2005-09-06 This is the first comprehensive account of Germany's most enduring film genre the Heimatfilm which has offered idyllic variations on the idea that there is no place like home since cinema's early days Charting the development of this popular genre over the course of a century in a work informed by film studies cultural history and social theory Johannes von Moltke focuses in particular on its heyday in the 1950s a period that has been little studied Questions of what it could possibly mean to call the German nation home after the catastrophes of World War II are anxiously present in these films and von Moltke uses them as a lens through which to view contemporary discourses on German national identity Classified Catalogue East St. Louis.
