Literature, Writing, and the Natural World James Guignard, T. P. Murphy, 2020-06-12 The English Association of Pennsylvania State Universities held its annual meeting in 2006 at Mansfield University in Pennsylvania The conference theme was Literature Writing and the Natural World This collection grows out of the conference and indicates the desire to understand all aspects of our relationship with the natural world the function of literature in clarifying that relationship in ways science and politics cannot and the role of the literature teacher scholar wanting to respond to pressures of environmental change In these times interpretation is a vital task not only for the way it educates us about our attitudes toward nature but because it develops the crucial skills of looking closely engaging reflecting and responding One could argue that as a culture Americans are behind the curve in understanding the ways we depend upon a healthy relationship with nature and one way among many depends upon examining it through texts and textual representation When the writers here dig into The Main Woods Jayber Crow the poetry of Pablo Guevara or the movie Crash they are contributing to our understanding of the ways in which we view nature and how that view plays a role in the way we relate to nature These days many disciplines engage global warming and other environmental issues routinely and the literature classroom should be no different Just as we read a book and address fundamental themes such as What does it mean to love or How do we develop identity we should also be asking What is my responsibility when I decide what resources to use If we understand literature as equipment for living in a warming world we may be able to help students make some sense out of their world and some decisions about how to act
