

ANTHROPOLOGY

Anthropology is the study of human beings, encompassing their biological, cultural, and social aspects. It seeks to understand the diversity of human experiences across time & space.

OVERVIEW

Anthropologists employ various methods such as participant observation, interviews, and archival research to investigate human societies and their practices. By examining the past and present, anthropology aims to shed light on the universal human condition and address questions about our origins, development, and interconnectedness.

EXAMPLES

- Cultural anthropology
- Linguistic anthropology
- Biological anthropology
- Archaeological anthropology
- Feminist anthropology
- Paleoanthropology
- Forensic anthropology
- Urban anthropology

Critical Anthropolgy Now:

Critical Anthropology Now George E. Marcus, 1999 Building on the legacy of Writing Culture Critical Anthropology Now vividly represents the changing nature of anthropological research practice demonstrating how new and more complicated locations of research from the boardrooms of multinational corporations to the chat rooms of the Internet are giving rise to shifts in the character of fieldwork and fieldworker

The Fate of "Culture" Sherry B. Ortner, 1999-11-29 The essays in this book were originally published as a special issue of Representations summer 1997 No 59

The Ethnological Imagination Fuyuki Kurasawa, 2004 Kurasawa sociology York U Toronto suggests what he calls the ethnological imagination as one of the possible routes out of the impasse created by the apparent exhaustion or inadequacy of Western social theory to deal with cross cultural thinking which becomes ever more urgent in light of increasing cultural pluralism and difference in the glo

Frontiers of Capital Melissa S. Fisher, Greg Downey, 2006-10-31 Ethnographies exploring how cultural practices and social relations have been altered by the radical economic and technological innovations of the New Economy

Studying Virtual Math Teams Gerry Stahl, 2010-05-03 Studying Virtual Math Teams centers on detailed empirical studies of how students in small online groups make sense of math issues and how they solve problems by making meaning together These studies are woven together with materials that describe the online environment and pedagogical orientation as well as reflections on the theoretical implications of the findings in the studies The nature of group cognition and shared meaning making in collaborative learning is a foundational research issue in CSCL More generally the theme of sense making is a central topic in information science While many authors allude to these topics few have provided this kind of detailed analysis of the mechanisms of intersubjective meaning making This book presents a coherent research agenda that has been pursued by the author and his research group The book opens with descriptions of the project and its methodology as well as situating this research in the past and present context of the CSCL research field The core research team then presents five concrete analyses of group interactions in different phases of the Virtual Math Teams research project These chapters are followed by several studies by international collaborators discussing the group discourse the software affordances and alternative representations of the interaction all using data from the VMT project The concluding chapters address implications for the theory of group cognition and for the methodology of the learning sciences In addition to substantial introductory and concluding chapters this important new book includes analyses based upon the author's previous research thereby providing smooth continuity and an engaging flow that follows the progression of the research The VMT project has dual goals a to provide a source of experience and data for practical and theoretical explorations of group knowledge building and b to develop an effective online environment and educational service for collaborative learning of mathematics Studying Virtual Math Teams reflects these twin orientations reviewing the intertwined aims and development of a rigorous science of small group cognition and a Web 2.0 educational math service It documents the kinds of interactional methods that small groups use to explore math issues and provides a glimpse into the potential of online interaction to promote productive math discourse

Documents Annelise Riles, 2006 Documents reflects on the new challenges to humanistic social science in a world in which the subjects of research increasingly share the professional passions and problems of the researcher Documents are everywhere in modern life from the sciences to bureaucracy to law at the same time fieldworkers document social realities by collecting producing and exchanging documents of their own Capping off a generation of reflection and critique about the promises and pitfalls of ethnographic methods the contributors explore how ethnographers conceive grasp appreciate and see patterns demonstrating that the core of the ethnographic method now lies in the way ethnographers respond to and increasingly share the professional passions and problems of their subjects Sophisticated and provocative The original and unique focus of this volume effectively opens up a new arena of critique that will move ethnography and qualitative inquiry forward in a way that few other works do George Marcus Department of Anthropology Rice University This edited collection asks how an understanding of documentary forms sheds light on the creation and circulation of modern forms of knowledge expertise and governance This is a major intervention in how we understand the everyday practice and techne of the documentary impulse and documentary apparatuses of law bureaucratic review and other institutions of modernity as well as linguistic anthropology literary theory and law The topic of Documents is not just of interest because of epistemological quandaries in the human sciences over textualization and interpretation but also because the domains to which we increasingly turn our attention are themselves auto documentary William M Maurer Chair and Associate Professor Anthropology University of California Irvine Contributors Mario Biagioli Donald Brenneis Carol Heimer Hirokazu Miyazaki Adam Reed Annelise Riles and Marilyn Strathern Annelise Riles is Professor of Law and Anthropology at Cornell University

Ethnography through Thick and Thin George E. Marcus, 2011-06-08 In the 1980s George Marcus spearheaded a major critique of cultural anthropology expressed most clearly in the landmark book Writing Culture which he coedited with James Clifford Ethnography through Thick and Thin updates and advances that critique for the late 1990s Marcus presents a series of penetrating and provocative essays on the changes that continue to sweep across anthropology He examines in particular how the discipline's central practice of ethnography has been changed by multi sited approaches to anthropology and how new research patterns are transforming anthropologists careers Marcus rejects the view often expressed that these changes are undermining anthropology The combination of traditional ethnography with scholarly experimentation he argues will only make the discipline more lively and diverse The book is divided into three main parts In the first Marcus shows how ethnographers tradition of defining fieldwork in terms of peoples and places is now being challenged by the need to study culture by exploring connections parallels and contrasts among a variety of often seemingly incommensurate sites The second part illustrates this emergent multi sited condition of research by reflecting it in some of Marcus's own past research on Tongan elites and dynastic American fortunes In the final section which includes the previously unpublished essay Sticking with Ethnography through Thick and Thin Marcus examines the evolving professional culture of anthropology and the predicaments of its new scholars He shows how students have increasingly been drawn to the field as much by such powerful interdisciplinary movements as feminism postcolonial studies and cultural studies as by anthropology's own traditions He also considers the impact of demographic changes within the discipline in particular the fact that anthropologists are no longer almost exclusively Euro Americans studying non Euro Americans These changes raise new issues about the identities of anthropologists in relation to those they study and indeed about what is to define standards of ethnographic scholarship Filled with keen and highly illuminating observations Ethnography through Thick and Thin will stimulate fresh debate about the past present and future of a discipline undergoing profound transformations Critical Anthropology ,1971 The Chittagong University Journal of Social Science ,2007 The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Research Norman K. Denzin (ed),Yvonna S. Lincoln,2005 A thoroughly revised updated edition this volume includes new chapters on auto ethnography critical race theory queer theory testimonies Critical Theory and Liberation Theology Margaret M. Campbell,1999 Critical Theory and Liberation Theology discusses two major features of the crisis of western modernity the first of these arises from the assumption that any value based societal critique rests upon an arbitrary or purely emotive choice of first principles The second is that the Christian churches have not developed an understanding of the relationship between faith and modernity that enables them to be a consistent or liberating voice in public affairs In response to this crisis Margaret Campbell traces Jürgen Habermas's search for a means by which questions regarding human authenticity and emancipation can be brought into the arena of rational political discourse Dr Campbell also presents an account of Gustavo Gutiérrez's liberation theology and describes it as a new kind of critical discourse about Christian faith one that begins by examining the political praxis of Christians Dr Campbell concludes that together Habermas and Gutiérrez have provided us with foundations for a theology of communicative and liberating praxis American Travelers and the South African Looking Glass Catherine Frances Mathers,2003 Journal of Commonwealth and Postcolonial Studies ,2003 Humanity & Society ,1998 International Encyclopedia of the Social & Behavioral Sciences Neil J. Smelser,Paul B. Baltes,2001 The largest work ever published in the social and behavioural sciences It contains 4000 signed articles 15 million words of text 90 000 bibliographic references and 150 biographical entries The Archaeology of Chaco Canyon Stephen H. Lekson,2006 The site of a great Ancestral Pueblo center in the 11th and 12th centuries AD the ruins in Chaco Canyon look like a city to some archaeologists a ceremonial center to others Chaco and the people who created its monumental great houses extensive roads and network of outlying settlements remain an enigma in American archaeology Two decades after the latest and largest program of field research at Chaco the National Park Service's Chaco Project 1971 1982 the original researchers and other leading Chaco scholars convened to evaluate what they now know about Chaco in light of new theories and new data Those meetings culminated in an advanced seminar at the School for Advanced Research where the Chaco Project itself was born in 1968 In this capstone volume the contributors address central archaeological themes including environment organization of production architecture regional issues and society and polity They place Chaco in its time and in its region considering what came before and after its heyday and its neighbors to the north and south including Mesoamerica Current Biography Yearbook, 2006 The aim of Current Biography Yearbook is to provide reference librarians students and researchers with objective accurate and well documented biographical articles about living leaders in all fields of human accomplishment Whenever feasible obituary notices appear for persons whose biographies have been published in Current Biography Publisher A Catalyst for Ideas Vernon Lee Scarborough, 2005 In his thirty four years as president of the School of American Research Douglas W Schwartz s far reaching vision placed SAR on the intellectual edge of research about humans across the globe Nowhere is this more evident than in his influence on the field of anthropological archaeology The twelve essays in this volume celebrate his contributions by looking back at changes in the field and forward to vital questions methods and theories yet nascent Ranging geographically from the North American Southwest where Schwartz himself conducted extensive research to Mesopotamia central America and the Indian subcontinent and chronologically from early hominid evolution through archaic hunter gatherers to the classic and historical Maya the distinguished contributors make the case for Schwartz s enduring legacy Addressing major issues in relations of power writing systems and directions for future research this volume is at once mature in its depth and exciting in its boldness The Evolution of Human Life History Kristen Hawkes, Richard R. Paine, 2006 Human beings may share 98 percent of their genetic makeup with their nonhuman primate cousins but they have distinctive life histories When and why did these uniquely human patterns evolve To answer that question this volume brings together specialists in hunter gatherer behavioral ecology and demography human growth development and nutrition paleodemography human paleontology primatology and the genomics of aging The contributors identify and explain the peculiar features of human life histories such as the rate and timing of processes that directly influence survival and reproduction Drawing on new evidence from paleoanthropology they question existing arguments that link human s extended childhood dependency and long post reproductive lives to brain development learning and distinctively human social structures The volume reviews alternative explanations for the distinctiveness of human life history and incorporates multiple lines of evidence in order to test them The Landscape of Qualitative Research Norman K. Denzin, Yvonna S. Lincoln, 1998-03-09 In this volume the contributors locate the field providing historical context and background on applied qualitative research the self and the other and the politics and ethics of qualitative inquiry
