Session 2-3:

Television can be revolutionary but at the same time it can't make it too explicit because otherwise it could get rejected.

In order to make sure that nothing of your tv show gets rejected, the story behind it needs to be normalized and made more soft.

In order to revolutionize something you need to start making changes little by little.

Most important keywords : jobs.

It started as an industry since the beginning because:

- it required a lot of money
- It required a huge technological infrastructure
- Since all the other medias with the passing time have become industries it was easy to foresee the same thing for tv
- costs, also the technologies used were only available to an industrial system, the power of television.

It was also presented, even in the beginning, as something there to stay.

The number of antennas in a countries depends from the morphology of the territory, more mountains mean more antennas.

Lectures:

How television has taken part in the construction of and deconstruction of Europe as a political entity.

Television has played a huge role in the construction of Europe as an entity even if the television coverage around Europe was completely different, television was investigated as a trap that disseminated political informations to people uninterested in politics and to influence them more than any other media.
