A General Historico-Critical Introduction to the Old Testament (Classic Reprint) Heinrich Andreas Cristoph Hävernicks, 2016-09-15

Excerpt from A General Historico Critical Introduction to the Old Testament The work of which a translation is now presented to the British Public was the mature production of a theologian distinguished by that vast and varied learning which may be regarded as peculiarly characteristic of the modern German divines and at the same time imbued with that reverence for the Bible as the Word of God and that lively apprehension of its spiritual truths which unhappily are too often found wanting in that quarter I have undertaken he says in his preface to write this work from that stand point which through Gods grace has been showed to me from the inward and firm conviction that the Object Of investigation is Gods holy word given to mankind sunk in sin and misery for the purpose of guiding them in the way of salvation and peace Vvhosoever has through the mercy of the Lord been led so as to have learned to understand at his hand the word of life and through this has been not only enlightened but sanctified and blessed cannot but feel constrained to utter according to the calling and in the measure vouchsafed to him by the Lord a testimony for the grace which has been displayed even unto him As it is written I believe therefore I speak so the theologian the servant of the Church of Jesus Christ knows that it is impossible to construct a theological science which is not founded on the truth more particularly on the truth as revealed in the Word and his desire and most zealous endeavour in keeping with this is to erect on this basis a living edifice of science the corner stone of which shall be that besides which no other can be laid by any man Such an one knows also that he thus labours not in the service of man and on a vain and profitless work but in the service of the Head of the Church who has placed him as a steward of the mysteries of God that he may be found faithful in the day of the appearing of Jesus Christ viii translator s preface About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
