the students will Receive People receive information every day in a variety of formats such as a phone tv radio other people and much more Students are flooded with information but what can they and should they do with all this information The answer in a lot of cases is RESEARCH Research Once students receive information it may require them to conduct research to gain additional information Research is done in a variety of ways To research students may interview survey or observe people They may search for facts in books journals or on the Internet The new information gained should provoke them to RESTRUCTURE their THINKING Restructure Thinking Restructuring their thinking is what happens when students learn new information Students thoughts are influenced by people and situations Critical thinkers learn to pause when they receive information so they can take time to determine the best course of action to take with that information After students restructure their thinking then it is time for them to RESPOND Respond Students receive information research it restructure their thinking and then respond The order is critical to avoid making hasty mistakes Responding to the information following research will help students make informed decisions Sometimes that decision may be not to respond at all and that may be a very wise decision After students respond the last but not least step is to REFLECT Reflect Reflecting on the entire process encourages analysis of the information received the information learned how thoughts were restructured and the response to the information Reflecting on the process will help students determine if their decision was wise or if it could have been improved Looking back helps students to plan more effectively as they look ahead Experience is not the best teacher Evaluating experience is the best teacher Students must learn to evaluate what they experienced The repetition of these 5 R s throughout the book reinforces the skills needed for students to learn to be critical thinkers who are capable of making wise decisions based on evidence rather than emotion Problem-solving Experiences in Mathematics Randall I.
