Criteria for the Determination of Death Law Reform Commission of Canada,1979 Reading Packet on the Determination of Death Reinhard Priester,1990 Defining Death Robert M. Veatch,Lainie Friedman Ross,2016 New technologies and medical treatments have complicated questions such as how to determine the moment when someone has died The result is a failure to establish consensus on the definition of death and the criteria by which the moment of death is determined This creates confusion and disagreement not only among medical legal and insurance professionals but also within families faced with difficult decisions concerning their loved ones Distinguished bioethicists Robert M Veatch and Lainie F Ross argue that the definition of death is not a scientific question but a social one rooted in religious philosophical and social beliefs Drawing on history and recent court cases the authors detail three potential definitions of death the whole brain concept the circulatory or somatic concept and the higher brain concept Because no one definition of death commands majority support it creates a major public policy problem The authors cede that society needs a default definition to proceed in certain cases like those involving organ transplantation But they also argue the decision making process must give individuals the space to choose among plausible definitions of death according to personal beliefs Taken in part from the authors latest edition of their groundbreaking work on transplantation ethics Defining Death is an indispensable guide for professionals in medicine law insurance public policy theology and philosophy as well as lay people trying to decide when they want to be treated as dead Death Determination by Neurologic Criteria Ariane Lewis,James L. Death: Beyond Whole-Brain Criteria Richard M. Zaner, 2012-12-06 From the tone of the report by the President s Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical and Behavioral Research one might conclude that the whole brain oriented definition of death is now firmly established as an enduring element of public policy In that report Defining Death: Medical, Legal and Ethical Issues in the Determination of Death the President s Commission forwarded a uniform determination of death act which laid heavy accent on the significance of the brain stem in determining whether an individual is alive or dead An individual who has sustained either 1 irreversible cessation of circulatory and respiratory functions or 2 irreversible cessation of all functions of the entire brain including the brain stem is dead A determination of death must be made in accordance with accepted medical standards 1 p 2 The plausibility of these criteria is undermined as soon as one confronts the question of the level of treatment that ought to be provided to human bodies that have permanently lost consciousness but whose brain stems are still functioning
