Such private stagings have experienced a particular upswing since the boom of social media. This democratisation of Holocaust memory and history is crucial, though it is as yet undecided how much it will ultimately reinforce old structures and cultural regional or other inequalities or reinvent them. The Digital space as an arbitrary and limitless archive for the mediation of the Holocaust, spanning from Russia to Brazil, is at the centre of the essays collected in this volume. This space is also considered as a forum for negotiation, a meeting place, and a battleground for generations and stories, and as such offers the opportunity to reconsider the transgenerational transmission of trauma, family histories, and communication. Here it becomes evident there are new societal intentions and decision-making structures that exceed the capabilities of traditional mass media and thrive on the participation of a broad
