Machiavellis Revivus Nevio Cristante, 2011-05-25 From an intensive academic study based primarily on Machiavelli s works critical arguments arise in this text that undermine not only the current day political mind set framework and practices but also the views established academically up to the point where the body politic formed by the Western classical tradition is dissipated and dispersed Comprised in a contrary unconventional manner similar to Machiavelli the basic essential factors of history religion power and authority were formulated as the four main chapters in this work by Nevio Cristante From it one can readily see the flaws today in the false praise in nostalgic historical hubris the forgetting of a brand of religion that is essential for healthy politics the overlooking of coercive forces that reduce politics to power and the loss of true authority In this book Cristante comprises Machiavelli as a virtuous unprecedented extreme humanist in stark contrast to the common incessant interpretations of him being a teacher of evil a diabolical soulless political advisor A subversive satirical interpretation of The Prince has been formed herein extending from the generated knowledge of history and the history of Machiavelli s own experience From the vivacious and unraveling Italian Renaissance a cogent force prompted Machiavelli to create his literary works in order to form an educational cure for the deteriorating human condition of his time and any time There is in Machiavelli a differing sense of newness from that which is commonly known today which circumvents its worth in this distinct educative interpretation Machiavelli goes back in time in order to produce lessons applicable to correct the shortages in his and every present day With a divergent view of the works of art and literature outlined in this analysis Machiavelli s education becomes revived today in creating a virtuous political spiritual and cultural dynamism as a battle cry to repel the ignorance and great misfortunes in our human condition Discourses on Livy

Niccolo Machiavelli,2020-04-25 Albeit the jealous temper of mankind ever more disposed to censure than to praise the work of others has constantly made the pursuit of new methods and systems no less perilous than the search after unknown lands and seas nevertheless prompted by that desire which nature has implanted in me fearlessly to undertake whatsoever I think offers a common benefit to all I enter on a path which being hitherto untrodden by any though it involve me in trouble and fatigue may yet win me thanks from those who judge my efforts in a friendly spirit And although my feeble discernment my slender experience of current affairs and imperfect knowledge of ancient events render these efforts of mine defective and of no great utility they may at least open the way to some other who with better parts and sounder reasoning and judgment shall carry out my design whereby if I gain no credit at all events I ought to incur no blame When I see antiquity held in such reverence that to omit other instances the mere fragment of some ancient statue is often bought at a great price in order that the purchaser may keep it by him to adorn his house or to have it copied by those who take delight in this art and how these again strive with all their skill to imitate it in their various works and when on the other hand I find those noble labours which history shows to have been wrought on behalf of the monarchies and republics of old times by kings captains citizens lawgivers and others who have toiled for the good of their country rather admired than followed nay so absolutely renounced by every one that not a trace of that antique worth is now left among us I cannot but at once marvel and grieve at this inconsistency and all the more because I perceive that in civil disputes between citizens and in the bodily disorders into which men fall recourse is always had to the decisions and remedies pronounced or prescribed by the ancients
