Disloyalty In The Confederacy:

Disloyalty in the Confederacy Georgia Lee Tatum, 2000-02-01
Tatum, 2016-03-28 Until recently many historians as well as people in general have commonly accepted the idea that every man woman and child in the South stood loyally behind Jefferson Davis and the Stars and Bars in support of the Confederacy. Despite the fact that out of a population of about eight million whites six hundred thousand offered their services to the Confederacy in 1861 and also the fact that the staunch unswerving loyalty of Southerners during the war will continue to rouse admiration there was in 1861 a small number which by 1865 had increased to a potent minority that did nothing to aid the Confederacy and much to injure it. While many showed their disaffection only by refusing to fight many others organized not only for self protection but also for the destruction of the Confederacy. Before the end of the war there was much disaffection in every state and many of the disloyal had formed into bands in some states into well organized active societies with signs oaths grips and passwords. In the present study an attempt has been made to discover the causes for this movement the classes that participated in it and the purpose and work of the organizations. Disloyalty in the Confederacy definitely puts to rout the belief once common that every man woman and child stood behind Jefferson Davis and the Stars and Bars in support of the Confederacy. New York Times Book Review This is the sort of book necessary to balance accounts of the Southern Confederacy. Heretofore the impression has been too often left that the South fought as a unit with a common purpose. Journal of Southern History John Brooke, 1970
Wakelyn, 2002-03-30 Far from being a monolith with unanimous leadership loyalty to the cause of a separate nation the Confederacy was in reality deeply divided over how to achieve independence. Many supposedly loyal leaders civilian as well as elected officials opposed governmental policies on the national and state levels and their actions ultimately influenced non support for military policies. Congressional differences over arming the slaves and bureaucratic squabbles over how to conduct the war disrupted the government and Cabinet of President Jefferson Davis. Rumors of such irreconcilable differences spread throughout the South contributing to an overall decline in morale and support for the war effort and causing the Confederacy to come apart from within. When asked to make sacrifices civilian leaders found themselves caught in the dilemma of either aiding the Confederacy or losing money through poor utilization of slave labor. To sustain profits the business and planter classes often traded with the enemy. Upon consideration of arming the slaves many members of Congress proclaimed that the war effort was not worth the demise of slavery and preferred instead to take their chances with the Northern government. Cultural leaders clergy newspapermen and men of letters claimed their loyalty to the war effort but often criticized government policies in public. By asking for financial support and instituting a military draft the national government infuriated local patriots who wanted to defend their own states more than they desired to defeat the enemy.

Auman,2014-01-23 This is an account of the seven military operations conducted by the Confederacy against deserters and disloyalists and the concomitant internal war between secessionists and those who opposed secession in the Quaker Belt of central North Carolina It explains how the outliers deserters and draft dodgers managed to elude capture and survive despite extensive efforts by Confederate authorities to hunt them down and return them to the army The author discusses the development of the secret underground pro Union organization the Heroes of America and how its members utilized the Underground Railroad dug out caves and an elaborate system of secret signals and communications to elude the hunters Numerous instances of murder rape torture and other brutal acts and many skirmishes between gangs of deserters and Confederate and state troops are recounted In a revisionist interpretation of the Tar Heel wartime peace movement the author argues that William Holden's peace crusade was in fact a Copperhead insurgency in which peace agitators strove for a return of North Carolina and the South to the Union on the Copperhead basis that is with the institution of slavery
