Crisis In The Built Environment The Case Of The Muslim City:

Crisis in the Built Environment Jamel Akbar, 2021-07-05 Is it not time to search for paradigms beyond capitalism and socialism The book argues that interactions between the claims of ownership control and use can elucidate crisis in our environments through measuring responsibilities Levels of responsibility created by properties and individuals rights developed by societal systems shape our attitudes and actions in most realms of urban life such as utilization maintenance investments etc In this edition further arguments were added such as the impossibility of achieving sustainability and justice within socialism or capitalism In a letter of recommendation to Jamel Akbar John Habraken former chairman of the Department of Architecture at MIT stated I do not believe in all my years of teaching to have met another student who matched the combination of research skills and the ability for theoretical constructs that he brought with him to MIT Reviews of the first edition Jamel Akbar has published an important contribution to the urban way of life in Muslim cities as well as formulating and illustrating a research method for the study of architecture and urbanism in other societies and regions around the World Professor Roderich Lawrence Open House International This is an impressive work Much has already been written about Islamic culture and urbanism but rarely has any study been as scholarly The significance of Akbar's work lies in a vision of better awareness of the settlement process In this sense it is a major and definitive book Professor David Cosling RIBA JOURNAL Crisis in the Built Environment, 1988 American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences 5:2 Mom Abul-Fadl, Husain Kassim, Hakim M. Building Migrant Cities in the Gulf Florian

Wiedmann,Ashraf M. Salama,2019-07-25 Human history has seen many settlements transformed or built entirely by expatriate work forces and foreigners arriving from various places Recent migration patterns in the Gulf have led to emerging airport societies on unprecedented scales Most guest workers both labourers and mid to high income groups perceive their stay as a temporary opportunity to earn suitable income or gain experience This timely book analyses the essential characteristics of this unique urban phenomenon substantiated by concrete examples and empirical research Both authors have lived and worked in the Gulf including Qatar Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates during various periods between 2006 and 2014 They explore Gulf cities from macro and interconnected perspectives rather than focusing solely on singular aspects within the built environment As academic architects specialised in urbanism and the complex dynamics between people and places the authors build new bridges for understanding demographic and social changes impacting urban transformations in the Gulf
