Crisis In The Family:

Crisis in the Family Roseann F. Umana, Steven Jay Gross, Marcia Turner McConville, Marcia B. Cherney, 1980 Crisis in the Family Roseann F. Umana, Steven Jay Gross, Marcia Turner McConville, 1980 Family Medicine J. L. Buckingham, E. P. Donatelle, W. E. Jacott, M. G. Rosen, Robert B. Taylor, 2013-06-29 JOHN S MILLIS In 1966 the Citizens Commission on Graduate Medical Education observed that the explosive growth in biomedical science and the consequent increase in medical skill and technology of the twentieth century had made it possible for physicians to respond to the episodes of illness of patients with an ever increasing effectiveness but that the increase in knowledge and technology had forced most physicians to concentrate upon a disease entity an organ or organ system or a particular mode of diagnosis or therapy As a result there had been a growing lack of continuing and comprehensive patient care The Commission expressed the opinion that Now in order to bring medicine s enhanced diagnostic and therapeutic powers fully to the benefit of society it is necessary to have many physicians who can put medicine together again The Commission proceeded to recommend the education and training of substantial numbers of Primary Physicians who would by assuming primary responsibility for the patient s welfare in sickness and in health provide continuing and comprehensive health care to the citizens of the United States In 1978 it is clear that the recommendation has been accepted by the public the medical profession and medical education There has been a vigorous response in the development of family medicine and in the fields of internal medicine pediatrics and obstetrics One is particularly impressed by the wide acceptance on the part of medical students of the concept of the primary physician Dr John S Family Ministry Diana R. Garland, 2012-08-02 Now revised and updated throughout Diana Garland s core text for ministers and others in the helping professions provides a comprehensive look at the Christian purpose of family and the complex world our families inhabit Family Transitions Celia Jaes Falicov, 1991-07-01 Of all concepts used by family therapists the family development framework is among the least studied in spite of its relevance to understanding spontaneous family change and to facilitating therapeutic intervention The notion that a developmental difficulty underlies the appearance of clinical symptoms has become a time honored tradition in family therapy just as it has been in individual therapy Yet unlike the well established and well researched models of child and adult development those in family development are rudimentary Despite increasing interest in the family life cycle as a framework for family therapy relatively little has been done to elucidate the specific dimensions and processes of spontaneous and therapeutically induced change over the family life cycle This volume gathers original contributions of some of the most prominent family theorists researchers and clinicians of our time to improve our understanding of these important and hitherto neglected domains The book opens with a comprehensive overview by the editor that outlines contributions to the family life cycle framework from family sociology and crisis theory This is followed by a comparative analysis of developmental thinking explicit or implicit in the theory and interventions of the major family therapy approaches Then divided into four parts FAMILY TRANSITIONS

introduces new conceptual models that integrate the temporality of the life cycle approach with systems theory. By their very nature, these models cut across therapeutic orientations and have important clinical applications. In Part II, family therapy's views of development are freed from the confines of the therapist's office and placed in the context of other disciplines. Chapters provide analysis of changing or static sociocultural values that can affect conceptions of development, potential misuse of the concept of cultural identity in health, mental health, and education, how family identity operates as a vehicle for cultural transmission over generations, and family therapists' assumptions about women's development. The role of expected and unexpected events in the family life cycle is the focus of Part III. Chapters on clinical approaches geared to dislocations of life cycle occurrences due to unexpected crises, chronic illnesses, loss, or drug abuse provide illustrations of interventions that utilize, enhance, or potentially detract from the family's developmental flow. Part IV explores the articulation of the life cycle framework within four major family therapy orientations: intergenerational, structural, systemic, and symbolic-experiential. Each of these chapters endeavors to elucidate what is the place of family development in each orientation, concepts of continuity and change, use of the concept of stages, transitions, or developmental tasks, the specific dimensions that change in most families over time, and the links between family dysfunction and life cycle issues. Finally, each chapter illustrates through clinical example, assessment strategies, formulation of treatment goals, and interventions as these emerge from a particular life cycle model.

FAMILY TRANSITIONS presents a significant advance in our understanding of functional and dysfunctional family development and offers a range of interventions to promote developmental change. It is an invaluable resource for clinical psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, and counselors that will also interest human development professionals, family sociologists, and family researchers. FAMILY TRANSITIONS can serve as a developmentally oriented textbook for teaching family therapy in academic and professional settings.

Now newer concepts such as shared decision making, the recovery approach, evidence-based practice, implementation science, telemedicine, and mobile device technology are adding layers of texture to this domain. These developments require an ever more sophisticated understanding of the very latest evidence and experience in community mental health care to respond to the values, goals, needs, and preferences of people with lived experience of mental health conditions. This second edition of the Oxford Textbook of Community Mental Health addresses recent changes and achievements, current controversies, and future challenges while emphasizing areas of convergence where social values health medical sciences and policy formation converge and meet This edition also features a new section on global mental health to emphasise what is known about the mental health gap in low and middle income countries and the evidence of how to respond to these huge global challenges Like community mental health care itself the authors are multidisciplinary international and bring both clinical and scientific perspectives to this volume This textbook will be an invaluable and authoritative source of reference for all mental health specialists for people with mental health conditions for staff in non governmental and governmental organisations and indeed for all who are dedicated to creating better mental health services and systems
