Revolutionizing English Education Clarice M. Moran, 2024-04-30 Artificial Intelligence or AI has seemingly burst into public consciousness with sudden vigor Previously relinquished to computer science journals it erupted as the unrelenting topic of public media with most of the furor surrounding chatbots like ChatGPT Although many educators began worrying about the implications of AI in student learning and creative activity this book will demonstrate that AI can be harnessed as a source of inspiration and meaningful instruction With an emphasis on useful classroom strategies as well as a consideration of the ethics of AI this book seeks to start a conversation in this nascent area of research and practice The primary focus is on the use of AI in the secondary English classroom but educators in other disciplines will find plenty of ideas and information

How to Integrate Literary Theory Into High School Language Arts Curriculum to Enhance Student Interaction with the Texts, 2013 The research question addressed in this capstone was how can I integrate Literary Theory into high school Language Arts curriculum to enhance how students interact with texts This capstone details many benefits of teaching Literary Theory to high school students including bridging cultural differences helping students develop critical reading skills and helping students better prepare for high school and college level courses The key influences of this question were the author s experiences in a Literary Theory course as well as Deborah Appleman s book Critical Encounters in High School English Teaching Literary Theory to Adolescents 2000 The author s research documents how many teachers have successfully used Literary Theory in different ways in different classrooms and develops a detailed semester curriculum plan on teaching Reader Response Marxist and Feminist theories to 9th 10th grade students He describes how to easily apply this curriculum to texts that are common in high school literature classes

Words No Bars Can Hold Deborah Appleman, 2019-06-18 Incarcerated bodies liberated minds a narrative of literacy education behind bars Words No Bars Can Hold provides a rare glimpse into literacy learning under the most dehumanizing conditions Deborah Appleman chronicles her work teaching college level classes at a high security prison for men most of whom are serving life sentences Through narrative poetry memoir and fiction the students in Appleman s classes attempt to write themselves back into a society that has erased their lived histories The students work through which they probe and develop their identities as readers and writers illuminates the transformative power of literacy Appleman argues for the importance of educating the incarcerated and explores ways to interrupt the increasingly common journey from urban schools to our nation s prisons From the sobering endpoint of what scholars have called the school to prison pipeline she draws insight from the narratives and experiences of those who have traveled it

Adolescent Literacy at Risk? Rebecca Bowers Sipe, 2009 As teachers we live in a world of standards From local administration to national education policy standards permeate every aspect of our teaching lives In Adolescent Literacy at Risk The Impact of Standards Rebecca Sipe offers an in depth look at the world of standards Throughout the book she raises questions that are significant to teachers and administrators who are concerned about the direction the standards movement has taken What do we mean by standards Why are there so many standards for literacy and where do they come from How have standards come to be seen as a formula for curricula rather than a platform for collaboration and planning In addition to her own stories Sipe takes us into the world of classroom teachers These stories demonstrate how innovative educators are able to remain true to best practices in adolescent literacy while working within a standards based framework Questioning the ways in which the standards movement has played out in classrooms school districts and states Sipe issues a call for thinking about standards differently She advocates for supporting and trusting teachers to find ways to make standards support the best of what we do As part of the Principles in Practice imprint Adolescent Literacy at Risk situates itself in research based understandings gleaned from Adolescent Literacy An NCTE Policy Research Brief and shows how those understandings connect to the standards movement
