security studies and development studies Korea in the Cross Currents R. Myers, 2001-05-03 The Korean peninsula underwent a continuous number of earth shaking events in the twentieth century although it is generally out of the earthquake zone Jutting off the extreme northeast edge of the Eurasian landmass and with a combined population of nearly seventy million people North and South Korea are situated among China Japan and Russia They are also profoundly influenced by the United States because of the circumstances of the Korean War 1950 1953 The issues of war and peace left over from the Korean war remain unresolved these two separate states are the residue of the Cold War This anomaly still poses ominous prospects for war or peace in Asia and American national security interests Focusing on the last hundred years of Korea's long history and its particular relationship with China one is in a position both to understand and marvel at the events of this century on the Korean peninsula At the same time the complexity of the division of the country into North and South Korea not just a perennial struggle between good and evil although that is certainly part of the story places the future at risk There was one terrible war that divided the 20th century in half and there are threats of more trouble to come This study of the history of the past century will provide some answers and open the way to informed speculations

Governance and Resistance in World Politics David Armstrong, James David Armstrong, Theo Farrell, Bice Maiguashca, 2003 The emergence of global governance challenges conventional interpretations of world politics regarding conflicts of interests between sovereign states under conditions of anarchy At the same time the new phenomena of anti globalization demonstrations transnational social movements and an emergent global civil society point to important developments in international relations Leading scholars reflect on the usefulness of thinking about these processes as a dichotomy between the politics of governance and the politics of resistance and consider its application to international relations Cross Currents Gi-Wook Shin, Daniel C. Sneider, 2007 Northeast Asia stands at a turning point in its history The key economies of China Japan and South Korea are growing increasingly interdependent and the movement toward regionalism is gaining momentum Yet interdependency often set in a global context also spurs nationalism in all three countries and elsewhere in East Asia Northeast Asia today feels the presence of all three complex forces national regional and global connecting competing and colliding in myriad ways The authors of this book assess current interactions of national and regional forces in Northeast Asia in the context of U S presence in the region These seemingly contradictory forces must be considered together the sparks they generate have important policy implications for the United States and for the region as a whole Constructive reformulation of these interactions is one of Northeast Asia's most pressing contemporary challenges The Standard, 1921 Annual Report - Harvard University, Center for International Affairs Harvard University.
