Crobed Lines New Territories Of Design:

CreuatsCruzadosCrossed Oscar Guayabero, Foment de les Arts Decoratives (Barcelona, Spain), 2003 The frontiers between the traditional disciplines of design are blurring This interdisciplinary space at times vague at times unclassifiable engendering all sorts of exchanges blends transactions frictions and superimpositions sketches a map of the territory with new points of convergence and new crossings of information and action and suggests heretofore unexplored paths of investigation The cataloged Crossed Lines New territories of design seeks to identify this new cartography of design and in doing so fixes its gaze on the playing field processes movements strategies alliances as well as the results objects and their protagonists authors This publication selects thirty nine pieces of diverse conception format and creators All of them represent in this context the points of convergence but also the points of departure in this territory that we seek to define The pieces defy any sort of disciplinary label or classification And it is not their authors intention to forge any consciousness of movement or group despite the existence of lines of work probing common territories using similar strategies In many cases the pieces have the capacity to generate their own universe beyond the simple crossing of disciplines This catalogue is meant to be an introduction to this new non parcelled mestizo frontier mutant territory that not only suggests new hybrid forms of work but also recasts disciplinary orthodoxy by incorporating new creative parameters and new attitudes towards investigation and which therefore generates new objects new spaces new images in sum new stimuli for our collective imagination Back cover
