Cross- Country

A Book of Australian Verse
edited by John Barnes and Brian McFarlane

Cross Country A Of Australian Verse

Daniela Niemeyer

Cross Country A Of Australian Verse:

Cross-country John Barnes, 1988 Cross Country is an anthology of Australian verse. It presents a coherent and stimulating selection that is representative of the range of achievement in Australian poetry from the early years to the present. Part One features the work of 19 major Australian poets; there is enough material here to allow for a detailed individual study of each poet or comparative studies of several poets. Part Two consists of a collection of individual poems illustrating the range and diversity of Australian poetry from Adam Lindsay Gordon's The Sick Stockrider to Fay Zwicky's Kaddish.

Cross-country John Barnes, Brian McFarlane, 1984 Douglas Stewart Susan P. Ballyn Jenney, 1996 Edge of the Sacred - Jung, Psyche, Earth David Tacey, Does earth have spirit or soul? This is a question being asked ever more frequently, especially by those interested in the future of the natural world and the development of consciousness. The alchemists said the greater part of the soul is outside the body and indigenous cultures have felt that soul or spirit resides in Nature and the physical environment. Such notions have been dismissed by modernity as illusions, but we are beginning to have second thoughts about the animation of the earth. Science and rationality have not taught us how to love or care for the earth and in the modern era the environment has been disrespected. The mythic bonds to Nature such as those found in Aboriginal Australian cultures appear to have real survival value because they bind us to the earth in a meaningful way. When these bonds are destroyed by excessive rationality or a collapse of cultural mythology, we are left alone outside the community of Nature and in an alienated state. In this state we do real damage to the environment because it is no longer part of our spiritual body or moral responsibility. Jung was one of the first thinkers of our time to consider the psychic influence of the earth and the conditioning of the mind by place. Inspired by his writings and those of James Hillman, the field of ecopsychology has arisen as a powerful new area of inquiry. Edge of the Sacred: Jung, Psyche, Earth contributes to global ecopsychology from an Australian perspective.

Oriental Prospects, 2022-07-04 A great deal of stimulating and valuable discussion as well as some indignation and hot air has been stimulated by Edward Said whose provocative study of Orientalism. Western Conceptions of the Orient appeared twenty years ago. This present book will, we believe, be recognized as a worthy addition to the many attempts that have since been made to sift the intrinsic and ingrained attitudes of West to East. The fifteen articles in Oriental Prospects cover Western Literature and the Lure of the East from the Renaissance through the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries to the modern period. Some are pragmatic accounts of responses to and uses of experiences of the Orient and its cultural attitudes and artefacts; others contend more theoretically with issues that Edward Said has raised. Despite all the misunderstanding, prejudice and propaganda in the scholarly and literary depiction of the Orient, still today as in the past, what emerges from this wide range of articles is that no species of literary text or academic study can appear without risking the accusation of escapist exoticism or cultural and economic exploitation and thus regrettably masking the essential and vital significance of the political and the real and imaginative trading between
