The Competition Model is an interactive-activation framework for the study of sentence processing that is designed to handle quantitative as well as qualitative variations in performance across natural languages. Previous studies within this framework have shown that adult listeners base their interpretation of simple sentences on the most valid and reliable cues in their language (e.g. more use of word order in English and more use of subject–verb agreement in Italian). Critics have argued that such effects may reflect heuristics that are only applied to simple sentences. The present study shows that these cross-linguistic differences are maintained when participants are asked to interpret complex sentences with an embedded relative clause. A comparison of "off-line" (untimed) and "on-line" (timed) versions of the same experiments shows that these effects hold up under time pressure. The on-line versions also provide new information about cross-linguistic differences in timing and demands on processing. In particular, the processing costs associated with centre embedding and non-canonical order are greater in English, which may be the price that English listeners have to pay for heavy reliance on word order information.

The Development of Language Processing Strategies Reiko Mazuka,2014-05-12 Ever since the notion of explanatory adequacy was promoted by Chomsky in his 1965 Aspects linguists and psycholinguists have been in pursuit of a psychologically valid theory of grammar To be explanatorily adequate a theory of grammar can not only describe the general characteristics of a language but can also account for the underlying psychological processes of acquiring and processing that language To be considered psychologically valid a grammar must be learnable by ordinary children the problem of acquisition and must generate sentences that are parsable by ordinary people the problem of processing Ultimately the fields of language acquisition and processing are concerned with the same goal to build a theory that accounts for grammar as it is acquired by children accessed in comprehension and production of speech and represented within the human mind Unfortunately these two fields developed independently and have rarely been well informed about each other s concerns Both have experienced past difficulties as a result Recently new models have been developed with full consideration to cross linguistic diversity Gone are many of the basic assumptions of conventional models and in their place a variety of innovative and more flexible assumptions have emerged However in their attempt to address cross linguistic issues these processing models have yet to fully address the developmental challenge How can a child without a stable grammar process language and still manage to acquire new grammar This book attempts to develop a model of language processing that addresses both cross linguistic and developmental challenges It proposes to link the setting of a basic configurational parameter during language acquisition to the different organization of processing strategies in left and right branching languages Based primarily on Mazuka s doctoral dissertation this volume incorporates various responses to the original proposal as well as the author s responses to the comments Cognition and Sentence Production S.N. Sridhar,2012-12-06 The developments in linguistic theory over the last three decades have given us a better understanding of the formal properties of language However as the truism goes language does not exist in a vacuum It in teracts with a cognitive system that involves much more than language and functions as the primary instrument of human communication A theory of language must therefore be based on an integration of its for mal properties with its cognitive and communicative dimensions The present work is offered as the modest contribution to this research paradigm This book is a revised and slightly enlarged version of my doctoral thesis submitted to the University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign In writing the original version I had the privilege of working with Professor Charles E Osgood who is widely recognized as the founder and one of the leading figures of modern psycholinguistics I have benefited from ex tensive and stimulating discussions with him not only on this topic but in the development of his theory of language performance in general see his Lectures on Language Performance 1980 in this series However the re sponsibility for the particular formulations of the theory hypotheses in terpretations and conclusions found in this work which have been in fluenced no doubt by my training as a linguist rather than as a psychologist are my own   Cross-Linguistic Perspectives on Language Processing M. de Vincenzi,V. Lombardo,2001-11-30 The cross linguistic aspect of language processing is becoming a central question in psycholinguistic research if the goal of psycholinguists is to give a model of the human sentence processor and not a language sentence processor a test of its cross linguistic validity is essential The chapters address truly fundamental issues about the representational primitives of the parsing system and the motivations for the essential characteristics of the parser The volume also discusses important methodological issues in cross linguistic research such as the choices of linguistic material and experimental procedures It also shows how cross linguistic research can be pursued in either a monolingual or multilingual approach This volume contains contributions from experimental and theoretical psycholinguists and computational researchers Audience The book is recommended reading for advanced undergraduates and graduate students in psycholinguistics linguistics and computational linguisitics as well as practising researchers in the same fields   Cross-linguistic Variation in Sentence Processing Despoina Papadopoulou,2006-08-27 The central question that I will pursue in this study concerns the universality of the human sentence processing mechanism It will be explored whether there are cross linguistic differences in parsing by p senting psycholinguistic evidence from Greek Empirical data collected from both native speakers and second language learners of Greek will be used to assess various parsing models and to investigate parsing mechanisms employed in Greek The results from the L2 learners will be additionally used to shed light on the nature of sentence processing in a second language Moreover a supplementary objective of this study is to provide insights into the question of whether discourse biases guide initial parsing choices The goal of any theory of sentence processing is to determine how people arrive at the desired interpretation of a given sentence attem ing thus to investigate the very nature of the human language processor Sentence processing is a rapid and automatic process one which is closely linked in time to the input Garrett 1990 136 Pickering 1999 This means that sentence processing proceeds in an incremental fashion once each word is encountered it is integrated to the sentence analysis Sentence processing necessarily involves a syntactic analysis of the sentence usually referred to as parsing which allows the reader or listener to identify the syntactic role of words within each sentence and an analysis which involves the use of semantic and pragmatic information to arrive at a plausible interpretation   Sentence Processing: A Crosslinguistic Perspective Dieter Hillert,1998-07-13 The innovative element of this volume is its overview of the fundamental psycholinguistic topics involved in sentence processing While most psycholinguistic studies focus on a single language and induce a general model of universal sentence processing this volume proposes a cross linguistic approach It contains two distinct features first embraced in the 18th century by brothers Freiherr Wilhelm von Humboldt and Alexander von Humboldt First it offers a linguistic theory that characterizes universal cognitive features of the human language processor or the mind and its biological source independent of a single language structure Second it contains a language theory which considers the diversity of linguistic structures and provides a powerful theory of language processing Cross Linguistic Study Of Sentence Processing : Delia Owens "Where the Crawdads Sing" This evocative coming-of-age story follows Kya Clark, a young woman who grows up alone in the marshes of North Carolina. Owens weaves a tale of resilience, survival, and the transformative power of nature, captivating readers with its evocative prose and mesmerizing setting. These top-selling novels represent just a fraction of the literary treasures that have emerged in 2023. Whether you seek tales of romance, adventure, or personal growth, the world of literature offers an abundance of compelling stories waiting to be discovered. The novel begins with Richard Papen, a bright but troubled young man, arriving at Hampden College. Richard is immediately drawn to the group of students who call themselves the Classics Club. The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a brilliant and suspenseful novel that will keep you guessing until the very end. The novel is a warning tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
