

A collage of various images is arranged around a central photograph. On the left, a large, detailed feather with orange and black stripes is positioned vertically. The central photograph shows a man and a woman smiling and embracing. To the right of the couple is a photograph of a vintage car. Below the car is a photograph of a group of people. A circular sticker with the text "WINNER OF THE AUSTRALIAN FILM AWARDS" is placed near the bottom right. The background of the collage is a light greenish-yellow.

Dingo Sally Dingo, 2001 The story of one of Australia's most loved film and television personalities The Dingo family history follows the formula of any self-respecting soap opera It's full of life death laughter violence struggle children poverty alcohol and surprisingly after all that success It is the stuff of overblown fiction It is also a history shared with every other Aboriginal family a history still unknown to many Australians Dingo makes that incredible story truly accessible to non-Aboriginal Australians Told through the eyes of Ernie Dingo's wife Sally it comes alive It is also Sally's story Emerging from her white middle class existence in a sleepy Tasmanian town Sally marries a charismatic actor and the turbulent Dingo tribe She finds much to love and much to cry about With the unique perspective of a white woman adopted by an Aboriginal family who is able to write about her experiences with great skill and warmth Dingo is a story to be treasured I think I have learnt more about Aboriginal society than in anything else I've heard or read for a long time The Sydney Morning Herald A book that bites deep into our consciousness The Sydney Morning Herald

Following Jesus in Invaded Space Chris Budden, 2011-07-27 Christianity is never just about beliefs but habits and practices for better or worse Theology always reflects the social location of the theologian including her privileges and prejudices all the time working with a particular often undisclosed notion of what is normal Therefore theology is never neutral it defends particular constructions of reality and it promotes certain interests Following Jesus in Invaded Space asks what and whose interests theology protects when it is part of a community that invaded the land of indigenous peoples Developing a theological method and position that self-consciously acknowledges the church's role in occupying Aboriginal land in Australia it dares to speak of God church and justice in the context of past history and continuing dispossession Hence a Second People's theology emerges through constant and careful attention to experiences of invasion and dislocation brought into dialogue with the theological landscape or tradition of the church Being a descendant of some of the first English invaders in Australia and a witness to the continuing inadequate recognition of the Church's past mistakes in this country theologian Chris Budden felt a strong need to write this book Leaving the past behind does not mean ignoring it and an acknowledgement of mistakes is a prerequisite to any fruitful discourse between invaders and invaded In our endeavours to help the marginalised and the indigenous Budden warns us against the arrogance of pitying them as poor superstitious things who can only be helped by our own superior concept of divine grace As Budden puts it We need to keep listening for voices that remind us that our normal is not necessarily everybody's normal His book encourages us to recognise and appreciate the diverse perspectives of minority theologians It is not just about giving a voice to these people It is about being able to hear their own voice to understand it and then reinterpret our own tradition according to it
