Dis Agreeing Ireland Contexts Obstacles Hopes:

Dis/agreeing Ireland James Anderson, James Goodman, 1998-10-20 Offers stimulating insights into the contexts problems and possibilities of achieving a settlement of the national conflict in Ireland Transnational Democracy James Anderson, 2002-11-01 Contemporary globalisation both challenges conventional forms of democracy and is opening up new needs and possibilities for democratisation beyond the territoriality of national states These issues are explored by an international and multidisciplinary array of experts who focus on federalism multicultural societies the European Union and potential agents for the democratisation of global institutions Minority Nationalism and the Changing International Order John McGarry, 2001-06-14 Globalization and European integration are sometimes seen as the enemies of nationalism sweeping away particularisms and imposing a single economic cultural and political order The book argues on the contrary that by challenging the nation state as the sole basis for identity and sovereignty they open the way for a variety of claims by stateless nations It is certainly true that recent years have seen a strong recurrence of nationalist claims in Europe and in other parts of the world At the same time however globalization and European integration provide new ways of managing nationality claims At one level they lower the stakes in independence and might permit peaceful transitions to independence Yet they may also make independence in the traditional sense less important and provide ways in which multiple and conflicting nationality claims could be accommodated in new political structures The chapters in this collection consider these issues from a theoretical perspective and through case studies of stateless nationalisms in western eastern and central Europe the former Soviet Union and Quebec They record a wide variety of experiences and show that while there are no easy answers to conflicting national claims there is reason to believe that they can be managed through democratic political processes Abandoning Historical Conflict? Peter Shirlow, 2010-08-15 Drawing on over 150 interviews with former IRA INLA UVF and UFF prisoners this is a major analysis of why Northern Ireland has seen a transition from war to peace Most accounts of the peace process are top down relying upon the views of political elites This book is bottom up analyzing the voices of those who actually fought the war What made them fight why did they stop and what are the lessons for other conflict zones Using unrivalled access to members of the armed groups the book offering a critical appraisal of one dimensional accounts of the onset of peace grounded in mutually hurting stalemate and ripeness which downgrade the political and economic aspects of conflict Military stalemate had been evident since the early 1970s and offers little in explaining the timing of the peace process Moreover republicans and loyalists based their ceasefires upon very different perceptions of transformation or victory Based on a Leverhulme Trust project and written by an expert team Abandoning Historical Conflict offers a new analysis based on subtle interplays of military political economic and personal changes and experiences Combined these allowed combatants to move from violence to peace whilst retaining core ideological beliefs and maintaining long term constitutional visions Former prisoners now act as ambassadors for peace in Northern Ireland

Knowledge of why and how combatants switched to peaceful methodologies amid widespread skepticism over prospects for peace is essential to our understanding of the management of global peace processes Abandoning Historical Conflict is essential reading for policy makers academics students and anyone with an interest in how war can become peace The Northern Ireland Conflict John McGarry, Brendan O'Leary, 2004-03-18 This text explains why Northern Ireland's national divisions have made the achievement of a consociational agreement particularly difficult The issues raised in the book are central to a proper understanding of Northern Ireland's past and future Geography Research Forum, 1997 The Field Day Anthology of Irish Writing Seamus Deane, Andrew Carpenter, Angela Bourke, Jonathan Williams, 1991 The Failure of the Northern Ireland Peace Process Gary Peatling, 2004 This book is a surprisingly broad study of the Northern Ireland conflict and peace process with an unusual and contentious hypothesis though one ultimately likely to prove useful even to those who disagree with it The book is influenced by a sense of the interlacing nature of political groups and dynamics in Northern Ireland which evinces understanding of though not empathy with even mutually exclusive positions in a way few writers on the Northern question draw out This sense that even groups often portrayed as intransigent find a constituency in Northern Ireland based upon the lived experience of groups and communities is underpinned by the book's view of identity and its consequences The book also addresses much discussed wider controversies such as debates surrounding immigration terrorism and September 11th and national identity It addresses these issues with unorthodox conclusions and it is guaranteed to be of interest to intelligent non specialists as well as to academics and policy makers The Western Balkans Milan Bufon, 2006 Reinventing Ireland Peadar Kirby, Luke Gibbons, Michael Cronin, 2002 Shows how transnational corporations use lobby groups to shape EU policy New updated edition Women, Unionism and Loyalism in Northern Ireland Rachel Ward, 2006 Politically active unionist and loyalist women in Northern Ireland are rendered relatively invisible because of the predominantly male public faces of unionism and loyalism This is evident in the media images of the male dominated annual parades by organisations such as the Orange Order statements by mostly male political party spokespersons and the murals of loyalist paramilitaries that designate territorial possession and seldom depict female involvement The book seeks to counter the stereotype that unionist and loyalist women just make the tea The aim of the book is to shed light on the form and extent of unionist and loyalist women's political participation The research conducted shows that unionist and loyalist women are more active political participants than the tea making stereotype suggests they have varied political roles although these are often invisible Whilst exploring the national and other cross cutting identities held by unionist and loyalist women and the motivations behind their political activity the evidence also suggests that the women have been motivated at least in part by their nationalism However this approach does not fully explain the form and extent of respondents political action apparent from a consideration of comparative figures of women and political participation The book concludes that a greater synthesis with the literature on gender and political participation is needed Ireland Beyond

Boundaries Liam Harte, Yvonne Whelan, 2007 This is an authoritative up to date account of the development of Irish Studies over the past two decades The authors examine the key debates that have underpinned recent scholarship and analyse critical concerns that have shaped the subject's remarkable growth They trace the institutional fortunes of Irish Studies in Ireland the USA Canada Australia and Britain and features in depth critical accounts of specific trends and themes within Irish historiography literary criticism religion migration music cultural geography sport and media culture

British-Irish Relations and Northern Ireland Brendan O'Duffy, 2007 This book examines the evolution of British Irish relations since 1921 and applies theories from political and social sciences including international relations to the Irish Northern Irish case The book includes the generation and analysis of primary data on violence and constitutional debate the analysis of primary sources such as state papers and elite interviews with British and Irish officials representatives of constitutional political parties in Northern Ireland and leaders and activists of republican and loyalist parties organisations Part 1 looks at how the attempt to regulate the Irish nationalist challenge to the British state through dominion status for the Irish Free State and partition impacted on governance in both jurisdictions The re opening of the Northern Irish Question in the late 1960s is then analysed to demonstrate the continued primacy of opposing claims to national self determination and their impact on subsidiary levels of conflict The final part covering the year 1985 to the present then demonstrates how the relative equalization of national status reflected in the bi national inter governmental relationship has been successful in regulating conflict by integrating vertically the bi nationality at state governmental and societal levels Finally implications of the British Irish approach are developed as contributions to the comparative theory and practice of ethno national conflict regulation

Northern Ireland's Troubles Marie-Therese Fay, Mike Morrissey, Marie Smyth, 1999 An up to date analysis of the problems faced by Iran's Kurdish population

The Politics of the Healthy Life Esteban Rodríguez Ocaña, 2002 This collection of ten essays investigates the rationale of public health interventions from the nineteenth century through to the late twentieth century It explores a variety of national and international contexts that range from imperial and colonial confrontation to the founding of the World Health Organisation Social medicine is a particularly prominent theme revealing how in the course of a century the once clear distinction between prevention and care came to be so blurred This collection of ten essays investigates the rationale of public health interventions from the nineteenth century through to the late twentieth century It explores a variety of national and international contexts that range from imperial and colonial confrontation to the founding of the World Health Organisation Social medicine is a particularly prominent theme revealing how in the course of a century the once clear distinction between prevention and care came to be so blurred By bringing together leading scholars in the fields of social history history of medicine psychiatry history of science demography and geography this book shows how religious beliefs welfare politics professional associations and the challenges of war have contributed to the shifting political arena especially at an international level The result is a volume which not only enhances our understanding of modern society but also helps to clarify the cultural meaning of medicine as a historical agent The Crowned Harp Graham Ellison, Jim Smyth, 2000-05-20 Baghdad Bulletin takes us where mainstream news accounts do not go Disrupting the easy clichés that dominate US journalism Enders blows away the media fog of war Norman Solomon

Single Europe, Single Ireland? James Goodman, 2000 The national conflict in Ireland has created and feeds off sharply uneven development between the island's north and south This is reflected in a history of diverging socio economic interests conflicting ideological positions and divided institutions which date back to the mid nineteenth century Since the 1950s this unevenness has been reversed first through economic convergence and with increasing intensity through ideological and institutional reorientations Integration in the European Union's Single Market has greatly accelerated this process to the extent that the need for stronger north south linkages has almost reached the status of conventional wisdom north and south Single Europe Single Ireland outlines this process of reversing uneven development providing an historical account of the conflict emphasising its north south dimensions This gives an essential backdrop to discussions of socio economic interests party political positions and state policies north and south Across these issue areas the process of EU integration is linked to the wider process of convergence in Ireland This is set against on going divisions and divergences leading to the conclusion in the book that North South linkages require concerted state action and guidance The Thriller and Northern Ireland

Since 1969 Aaron Kelly, 2005 Almost 400 thrillers have been produced in response to the ongoing political upheaval in Northern Ireland This work interrogates the complicity of the enduring confrontations conspiracies and mysteries of the thriller genre with the view of Northern Irish society as suspended in a recurrent stasis Who's who in European Integration Studies, 2000 Women, Policing and Resistance in Northern Ireland Sharon Pickering, 2002 A rich and varied collection of interviews which present women's reflections on the policing of events from the civil rights marches of the late 1960s right up to the post ceasefire period of the 1990s drawing out the specific strategies used by the police and military to intimidate and humiliate women strategies that typically involved sexual threat and innuendo She also describes how women used their tongues as their greatest weapon in defying the authorities through their speech their argument their silence
