Gates, 2002-04 From the late eighteenth to the early twentieth century hundreds of British women wrote about and drew from nature Some like the beloved children's author Beatrix Potter who produced natural history about hedgehogs as well as fiction about rabbits are still familiar today But others have all but disappeared from view Barbara Gates recovers these lost works and prints them alongside little known pieces by more famous authors like Potter's field notes on hedgehogs reminding us of better known stories that help set the others in context The works contained in this volume are as varied as the women who produced them They include passionate essays on the protection of animals vivid accounts of travel and adventure from the English seashore to the Indian Alps poetry and fiction and marvelous tales of nature for children Special features of the book include a detailed chronology placing each selection in its historical and literary context biographical sketches of each author's life and works a comprehensive bibliography of primary and secondary literature and over sixty illustrations An ideal introduction to women's powerful and diverse responses to the natural world In Nature's Name will be treasured by anyone interested in natural history women or Victorian and Edwardian Britain Ladies in the Laboratory? American and British Women in Science, 1800-1900 Mary R.S. Creese, 2000-01-01 A systematic survey and comparison of the work of 19th century American and British women in scientific research this book covers the two countries in which women of the period were most active in scientific work and examines all the fields in which they were engaged The field by field examination brings out patterns and concentrations in women's research in both countries and allows a systematic comparison of the two national groups Through this comparison new insights are provided into how the national patterns developed and what they meant in terms of both the process of women's entry into research and the contributions they made there Ladies in the Laboratory features a specialized bibliography of nineteenth century research journal publications by women created from the London Royal Society's Catalogue of Scientific Papers 1800-1900 In addition 23 illustrations present in condensed form information about American and British women's scientific publications throughout the nineteenth century. This well organized blend of individual life stories and quantitative information presents a great deal of new data and field by field analysis. Its broad and methodical coverage will make it a basic work for everyone interested in the story of women's participation in nineteenth century science. Bibliography of Natural History Travel Narratives Anne S.

Troelstra, 2017-06-01 Anne Troelstra's fine bibliography is an outstanding and ground breaking work. He has provided the academic world with a long needed bibliographical record of human endeavour in the field of the natural sciences. The travel narratives listed here encompass all aspects of the natural world in every part of the globe but are especially concerned with its fauna, flora and fossil remains. Such eyewitness accounts have always fascinated their readers but they were never written solely for entertainment. Fragmentary though they often are, these narratives of travel and exploration are of immense importance for our scientific understanding of life on earth, providing us with a window on an ever changing and often vanishing natural world. Without such records of the past we could not track, document or understand the significance of changes that are so important for the study of zoogeography. With this book Troelstra gives us a superb overview of natural history travel narratives. The well over four thousand detailed entries, ranging over four centuries and all major western European languages, are drawn from a wide range of sources and include both printed books and periodical contributions. While no subject bibliography by a single author can attain absolute completeness, Troelstra's work is comprehensive to a truly remarkable degree. The entries are arranged alphabetically by author and chronologically by the year of first publication under the author's name. A brief biography with the scope and range of their work is given for each author; every title is set in context; the contents, including illustrations, are described; and all known editions and translations are cited. In addition, there is a geographical index that cross refers between authors and the regions visited, and a full list of the bibliographical and biographical sources used in compiling the bibliography. International Women in Science Catherine M.C.

Haines, 2001-11-20 A comprehensive biographical guide to the scientific achievements, personal lives and struggles of women scientists from around the globe. International Women in Science: A Bibliographical Dictionary to 1950 presents the enormous contributions of women outside North America in fields ranging from aviation to computer science to zoology. It provides fascinating profiles of nearly 400 women scientists, both renowned figures like Florence Nightingale and Marie Curie, and women we should know better like Rosalind Franklin, who along with James Watson and Francis Crick uncovered the structure of DNA. Students and researchers will see how the lives of these remarkable women unfolded and how they made their place in fields often stubbornly guarded by men, overcoming everything from limited education and professional opportunities to indifference, ridicule and cultural prejudice to outright hostility and discrimination. Included are a number of living scientists, many of whom provide insights into their lives and scientific times. Those contributions plus additional previously unavailable material make this a volume of unprecedented scope and richness. Victorian Women Peter Bell,1989 Wayward Women Jane Robinson,1991 The woman travellers represented in this collection all wrote books of their own These women are mostly British or American and this guide examines the almost one thousand books they produced among them Spanning sixteen centuries it reveals a body of literature full of insight wit and courage Women Adventurers,1750-1900 Mary Frech McVicker,2008 This biographical dictionary provides an extensive guide to prominent female travelers of the late 18th and early 19th centuries British women make up the largest portion of the book s focus these particular adventurers being backed in many cases by family money scientific inquiry and the ready availability of British sea travel Organized alphabetically by the adventurers last names each entry features biographical information including the woman s family background her educational history and a brief summary of her world travels Butterfly Collectors and Painters Pamela Gilbert,2000 The Butterflies of Venezuela: Nymphalidae II (Acraeinae, Libytheinae, Nymphalinae, Ithomiinae, Morphinae) : a comprehensive guide to the identification of adult Nymphalidae, Papilionidae, and Pieridae Andrew F. E. Neild,Bernard D'Abrera,1996 The History of Natural History Gavin D. R. Bridson,2008 With over 5 300 added references this revised and updated edition is an essential source of information for scientists researchers and enthusiastic amateurs The History of Natural History is one of those key works that should be kept in easy reach of anyone interested in the study of natural history in all its branches An Annotated Bibliography of Diaries Printed in English Christopher Sampson Handley,1997 The Aurelian Legacy Michael A.
