The New Engineering Contract Arthur McInnis,2001 The introduction of the New Engineering Contract NEC encourages a systematic approach to contracting which is multidisciplinary in nature and fully interlocked in form The NEC is intended by its supporters to be more flexible and easier to use than any current leading traditional standard forms of contract It is believed that these features reduce adversariality and disputes The NEC seeks to achieve this aim primarily through co operative management techniques and incentives built into the NEC s procedures This commentary analyses and evaluates these and related claims of innovation The New Engineering Contract A legal commentary examines the background to the NEC its design objectives structure procedures and likely judicial interpretation to determine whether it improves upon the traditional standard forms of contract Special attention is given in the commentary to the development and the significance of the principles underlying preparation of the NEC as well as the arguments in favour of and against them Throughout the detailed commentary upon the NEC clauses comparisons to the traditional forms are also made to highlight unique features and principles of general application The conclusion reached is that the NEC does make a significant contribution to the development of standard forms of contract addresses many of their short comings and offers one of the best models for their future development direction and design The commentary draws upon the body of the project management literature and legal analysis to support its conclusions The New Engineering Contract A legal commentary will be essential reading for lawyers barristers and solicitors as well as engineers and project managers

Chambers & Partners' the Legal Profession ,1999 The Legal 500 ,1999 Martindale-Hubbell International Law Directory ,1993 Public Procurement and the EU Competition Rules Albert Sánchez Graells,2015-06-25 Public procurement and competition law are both important fields of EU law and policy intimately intertwined in the creation of the internal market Hitherto their close connection has been noted but not closely examined This work is the most comprehensive attempt to date to explain the many ways in which these fields often considered independent of one another interact and overlap in the creation of the internal market This process of convergence between competition and public procurement law is particularly apparent in the 2014 Directives on public procurement which consolidate the principle of competition in terms very close to those advanced by the author in the first edition This second edition builds upon this approach and continues to ask how competition law principles inform and condition public procurement rules and whether the latter in their revised form are adequate to ensure that competition is not distorted The second edition also deepens the analysis of the market behaviour of the public buyer from a competition perspective Proceeding through a careful assessment of the general rules of competition and public procurement the book constantly tests the efficacy of these rules against a standard of the proper functioning of undistorted competition in the market for public procurement It also traces the increasing relevance of competition considerations in the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union and sets out criteria and recommendations to continue influencing the development of
