Business Improvement Districts Goktug Morcol, Lorlene Hoyt, Jack W. Meek, Ulf Zimmermann, 2017-09-29 Initiated and governed by property or business owners under the authorization of state and local governments business improvement districts BIDs have received a very mixed reception To some they are innovative examples of self governance and public private partnerships to others they are yet another example of the movement toward the privatization of what should be inherent government responsibilities Among the first books to present a collection of scholarly work on the subject Business Improvement Districts Research Theories and Controversies brings together renowned leaders in the field to compile the highest quality theoretical legal and empirical studies into one comprehensive volume Investigating fundamental concerns at the core of the debate as well as potential solutions this groundbreaking resource Tackles the need for improved problem solving and efficiency in service delivery Examines new and innovative policy tools for both the public and private sectors Evaluates whether BIDs do ignore the needs and voices of residential property owners Discusses the challenge created by social segregation in cities Addresses lack of accountability by BIDs to the public and elected representatives From different perspectives leading practitioners and academics analyze the pros and cons of BIDs both in the United States and around the world They look at their impact on urban planning and retail revitalization consider their legal implications and explore ways to measure BID performance Filled with case studies of urban centers including San Diego Atlanta New York Toronto and Capetown and state models such as New Jersey and Pennsylvania this examination bring together essential information for researchers as well as those leaders and policy makers looking to adopt a BID model or improve one already in place

Business Improvement Districts Lawrence O. Houstoun, Paul R. Levy, 2003 Learn how BIDs work how they have evolved and why they have been successful at increasing property values and improving economic conditions both downtown and in suburban business districts Book jacket Urban Land, 2008 Business Improvement Districts and the Contradictions of Placemaking Susanna F. Schaller, 2019-07-15 The livable city the creative city and more recently the pop up city have become pervasive monikers that identify a new type of urbanism that has sprung up globally produced and managed by the business improvement district and known colloquially by its acronym BID With this case study Susanna F Schaller draws on more than fifteen years of research to present a direct focused engagement with both the planning history that shaped Washington D C s landscape and the intricacies of everyday life politics and planning practice as they relate to BIDs Schaller offers a critical unpacking of the BID ethos which draws on the language of economic liberalism individual choice civic engagement localism and grassroots development to portray itself as color blind democratic and equitable Schaller reveals the contradictions embedded in the BID model For the last thirty years BID advocates have engaged in effective and persuasive storytelling as a result many policy makers and planners perpetuate the BID narrative without examining the institution and the inequities it has wrought Schaller sheds light on these oversights thus fostering a critical discussion of BIDs and their collective influence
