Disserted Dunia Zongwe, 2023-09-30 Disserted is a groundbreaking comprehensive book that guides LL B students on how to craft a first class dissertation. It tackles head on the triple crisis faced by law students in developing nations: a crisis of doubting, thinking and writing. This crisis manifests itself in the form of poorly written dissertations. This is the first book to show how to practically assemble a dissertation from the perspective of decoloniality. This makes Disserted uniquely suited to students from the Global South considering that decoloniality empowers them to overcome the triple crisis. Indeed its originality in presenting practical advice and decolonial theory sets this book apart from the handful of guides on LL B dissertations. Existing resources and manuals are filled with generalities and lack in practicality. Written in student friendly prose its 23 chapters cover a wide range of topics including research proposals, topic selection, purpose and problem statements, literature reviews, digital tools and models powered by artificial intelligence, AI, the basics of legal prompt engineering, plagiarism, grammar and research methods. Each chapter offers secrets and deep insights drawing from the author's extensive experience in supervising LL B dissertations and research papers notably in Southern Africa and India. Though primarily targeting LL B students Disserted also serves as an essential companion and indispensable resource for supervisors, law professors, jurists and anyone interested in unraveling the complexities of writing dissertations. Overall Disserted underscores the importance of structured dissertation writing coupled with a decolonized research approach that subverts dominant perspectives, exposes the role of AI and technology in entrenching the coloniality of knowledge and fosters a broader understanding of law.

Optimal Physical Activity across the Lifespan for People of All Abilities Ronald F. Zernicke, David Arthur Hart, Humans evolved to be mobile within the boundary conditions of Earth and many biological and physiologic systems depend on mechanical loading to maintain integrity during growth and maturation during skeletal maturity and during the aging process. These systems subscribe to the use it or lose it principle and thus require continual use to maintain integrity. Given that premise considerable basic and clinical research efforts have been directed at optimizing the effectiveness and positive impact of exercise on sports performance and the well being of those with intact systems. However those with disabilities or compromised abilities also benefit from exercise protocols and there exists a need to focus attention on these populations as well. Given the myriad of biological and physiological systems that benefit from exercise and mechanical loading there is a need for all humans of varying abilities to not only maintain the integrity of their health but to attempt to optimize it recognizing that optimizing each person's health across the stages of the life cycle may require different exercise protocols dependent on stage of life, sex, genetics and other individualized variables. For those with physical disabilities embracing and maintaining such exercise protocols may be challenging but expanded research, translation of findings and integration of the outcomes into everyday life to enhance the health and well being of this significant population are needed going forward.
