Trends in Control and Measurement Education D.P. Atherton, D.A. Linkens, 2014-06-28 This volume is the published Proceedings of selected papers from the IFAC Symposium Swansea 11-13 July 1988 where a forum was provided for discussion of the latest advances and techniques in the education of control and instrument engineers. Seven major topics were covered to aid lecturers in understanding developing and presenting systems engineering control and measurement as a subject to undergraduate and postgraduate students. The teaching of real time computer control as a topic and laboratory experiments for both continuous and discrete systems were discussed as was process control with the emphasis on providing the student with engineering experience by using scaled down equipment which would teach practical skills. Included in the Proceedings are papers on measurement and instrumentation an area felt to be neglected within academic instruction. The development of software tools for systems design within systems engineering was included as was the exchange of teaching packages and methods between academics and the education curriculum of systems engineering within developing countries. These Proceedings will prove to be a useful up to date guide and reference source for all lecturers and professors involved in curriculum development and the teaching of control and measurement in systems engineering.

Never Enough Time Brian H. Spitzberg, 2025-10-24 Never Enough Time discusses the directional and irreversible nature of time its relationship to information and entropy the deep time history of communication from the genesis of language to today and the extent to which we occupy time through our communication. Drawing together studies from a wide variety of disciplines and topics that provide quantitative estimates of how much daily time is expended communicating and relating to others the author demonstrates that in an increasingly accelerating mediated and information overloaded ecosystem we spend most of our time both socially and occupationally engaged in various forms of communication. He examines the nature of time in the context of our increasingly overloaded and mediated information and communication ecosystem the extent to which our increasing screen time displaces face to face interaction and the implications this trend has for our quality and quantity of life particularly for younger populations. In addition a case is made for the importance of developing standardized measures of time made all the more feasible with digital technologies already available for quantifying behavior at population scales. This book will appeal to graduate students scholars and researchers interested in time communication theory new media and media studies and communication and personal relationships.
