Aaron Swartz's The Programmable Web Aaron Swartz,2022-11-10 This short work is the first draft of a book manuscript by Aaron Swartz written for the series Synthesis Lectures on the Semantic Web at the invitation of its editor James Hendler Unfortunately the book wasn t completed before Aaron s death in January

2013 As a tribute the editor and publisher are publishing the work digitally without cost From the author's introduction we will begin by trying to understand the architecture of the Web what it got right and occasionally what it got wrong but most importantly why it is the way it is We will learn how it allows both users and search engines to co exist peacefully while supporting everything from photo sharing to financial transactions We will continue by considering what it means to build a program on top of the Web how to write software that both fairly serves its immediate users as well as the developers who want to build on top of it Too often an API is bolted on top of an existing application as an afterthought or a completely separate piece But as we'll see when a web application is designed properly APIs naturally grow out of it and require little effort to maintain Then we'll look into what it means for your application to be not just another tool for people and software to use but part of the ecology a section of the programmable web This means exposing your data to be queried and copied and integrated even without explicit permission into the larger software ecosystem while protecting users' freedom Finally we'll close with a discussion of that much maligned phrase the Semantic Web and try to understand what it would really mean
