Pickering, 2008 Written for both a general and academic audience this full length biography of Feergus O Connor 1795 1855 provides an overview of a turbulent and active political career from positions in journalism and the House of Commons to mass demonstrations for the People's Charter and working for the Chartist Land company. At the height of his popularity as a leader of the Chartists' campaign for democratic reform, O'Connor enjoyed the support of millions of working people. But more than any other popular leader of his generation, he sought to bring the working Saxon and Celt together in a common struggle, an aspiration that had its roots deep in the Irish past. Uniquely, this account restores the Irish dimension of O'Connor's career to its proper place by offering for the first time an evaluation of his heritage, his ideas, and his public life on both sides of the Irish Sea. International Labor and Working Class History, 2000. "Under Their Own Vine and Fig Tree" Jamie Lara Bronstein, 1996. Voices of the People Robert Gaston Hall, 2007. Exploring the development and decline of Chartism as a coherent political identity between 1830 and 1860, this study illustrates the creation of Chartist identity from the point of view of plebeian intellectuals and activists in Aston-under-Lyne and other militant localities of Greater Manchester and Lancashire. Labour History Review Society for the Study of Labour History, 2000. The Diaries of Samuel Bamford Samuel Bamford, 2000. Samuel Bamford's Passages in the Life of a Radical (1842) and Early Days (1848) are among the most important sources for the social history of the early industrial revolution and the radical movement. What is less well known is that he left behind an extensive, varied, and readable collection of other writings. The diaries were written towards the end of his life (1858-1861) and include letters and journalism both by and about Bamford, closely linked to the diary material. There is frequent reference to and argument about the early 19th-century radical movement and the Peterloo massacre, and among Bamford's contacts and correspondents were the MPs Richard Cobden and James Kay-Shuttleworth, the pioneer dialect writers Edwin Waugh and Ben Brierley, and mid-Victorian political reformers.
