David Baud

Charles In Charge:

TV Family Values Alice Leppert, 2019-03-15 During the 1980s U S television experienced a reinvigoration of the family sitcom genre Drawing on Foucauldian and feminist theories Alice Leppert examines the nature of sitcoms against the backdrop of a time period generally remembered as socially conservative and obsessed with traditional family values

Charles in Charge Elizabeth Faucher, 1984-12 With wild Buddy Lemback as his best friend and gorgeous Gwendolyn Pierce as his girlfriend it seems unlikely that Charles can take care of three kids and still get good grades but he does

Charles in Charge Universal City Studios, 1984 Charles the Bold in Italy 1467-1477 R. J. Walsh, 2005-02-01 This is a definitive study of Charles the Bold's diplomatic and military relations with the Italian states taking full account of economic policy The book makes extensive use not only of the great mass of diplomatic correspondence in the archives of Florence Mantua Milan Modena and Venice but also of Charles financial records in the archives of Brussels and Lille The author's mastery of these primary sources is complemented by judicious use of a wide range of secondary material Aspects of Charles the Bold's relations with Italy have been considered in earlier literature but no study has before dealt with them comprehensively at any length This book fills that gap and places Charles reign in its wider European context

Housework and Gender in American Television Kristi Rowan Humphreys, 2015-10-29 Housework and Gender in American Television Coming Clean examines representations of housework and their relationships with gender in sixty of the most popular television shows of the 1950s through the 1980s searching for trends similarities inconsistencies and meaning Much of the critical scholarship addressing mid century televised housework claims that domestic activities marginalize female characters removing them from scenes involving important familial discussions and placing them in devalued positions This book challenges the notion that housework functions primarily as a mechanism through which female characters are marginalized devalued invisible or passive and instead proposes a different reading of housework in television one that brings to the fore the loving sacrificial and active qualities so crucial and foundational to housework activity in both representation and reality These qualities in turn attach a strength to female characters and male characters when applicable that is often ignored in standard feminist analyses of television This study reveals roughly twenty trends established in four decades of televised housework from the housewives of the fifties to the witches and genies of the sixties to the elimination of male domestic labor in the seventies to the dominance of male housekeepers in the eighties
