Diminished Mind One Family's Extraordinary Battle With Alzheimer's The Jean Tyler Story:

The Diminished Mind Jean Tyler, Harry Anifantakis, 1993 Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's Kathleen Adams, Persis R. Granger, 2004-01-04 Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's is a support group in print for those escorting a loved one on the Alzheimer's journey. Nine women map the passage of a parent through Alzheimer's disease, describing the evolution of their own emotional responses to the disease and the changes it effects in the patient and in her relationship with family members. The book invites the reader to take a first step in healing from Alzheimer's ripple effect by beginning to journal about the experience. Use the stories here as tools to understand your own painful situation. Employ them to help you empower yourself sort through your emotions and begin to heal. Seize upon that which makes sense to you and disregard that which seems irrelevant. Then pick up your favorite pen and notebook and talk about what is going on in your journey with Alzheimer's disease. We wish you well. Persis Granger, Editor. Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's. An enthralling, ambitious and much needed effort, most definitely the sort of work on Alzheimer's that needs to get public notice. Karla Morales, People's Medical Society. Last Rights Barbara Logue, 1993-01-01. Several recent trends, demographic, social and economic, are increasing the incidence and public support of deliberate death among the old and sick. The number of elderly people is at an all time high. Medical technology can prolong the lives of these men and women, but it cannot keep them independent, free of pain, or competent to manage their own affairs. Never before have so many been so sick for so long. Changes in the size and structure of the American family make long term home care almost impossible, while exorbitant health costs and scarce resources limit the provision of high quality care by paid workers. Researcher Barbara J. Logue refers to any deliberate behavior that causes death as death control. She points out that death control, like birth control, involves very serious and deeply personal decisions, choices that ought to be made on the basis of reliable information, with care and compassion, without coercion. She goes on to assert that like birth control, death control should be performed legally and with the help of the medical community. Without access to assisted deaths, many frail old people are left to endure wretched deaths. Some die slowly of neglect or malnutrition in nursing homes. Others take their own lives, sometimes by violent means, while they can still act independently because they are afraid that no one will help them if they wait until they are very sick. Some die alone, fearful of implicating friends or relatives in their back alley euthanasia. While some die too soon because they are poor, uneducated, or hard to manage, others are overtreated and their deaths delayed because doctors and hospitals want to increase their income or fear prosecution if they help a patient die. Barbara Logue describes these and many other hazards inherent in our present long term care system, noting that all too often the system causes suffering instead of alleviating it. After assessing the alternatives, she urges that we must make compassionate death control as available as birth control. We must regulate and monitor it like any other medical procedure, taking steps to minimize the risks while maximizing the benefits. Reconstructing Illness Anne Hunsaker Hawkins, 1999. Serious illness and mortality, those most universal unavoidable and frightening of human experiences are the focus of this pioneering study which has been hailed as a telling and provocative commentary on our times As modern medicine has become more scientific and dispassionate a new literary genre has emerged pathography the personal narrative concerning illness treatment and sometimes death Hawkins s sensitive reading of numerous pathographies highlights the assumptions attitudes and myths that people bring to the medical encounter One factor emerges again and again in these case studies the tendency in contemporary medical practice to focus primarily not on the needs of the individual who is sick but on the condition that we call disease Pathography allows the individual person a voice one that asserts the importance of the experiential side of illness and thus restores the feeling thinking experiencing human being to the center of the medical enterprise Recommended for medical practitioners the clergy caregivers students of popular culture and the general reader Reconstructing Illness demonstrates that only when we hear both the doctor s and the patient s voice will we have a medicine that is truly human The Cumulative Book Index
