Directing Youth Theatre H.D. Mayo,2011 As an active director of productions featuring youth actors I find myself debating the same questions continuously Are there clear and demonstrated differences between working with young people and adults when directing a youth theatre production Are there approaches and methods of working with young people that differs greatly from working with adults Are these methods supported and utilized by those working professionally in the field Is there an ideal format for a theatre producing only productions with youth I believe that directing young actors tends to require a shift in focus due to the pliability sensitivity and inexperience of the actors I feel the director must take into account the emotional developmental and educational needs of the young people and at the same time remain focused on the creation of a product with artistic integrity and clear storytelling Due to the didactic nature of Youth Theatre directing young people often requires an awareness of process over product despite the similar end goal of directing adults Since little research or literature exists about the differences between working with adults versus young people I will pursue information by interviewing several recognized professionals in the field of Theatre by and for Youth I will examine their multiple methods techniques and practices of working with young people In addition I will use my personal experience working with youth at the Orlando Repertory Theatre in Florida and Coterie Theatre in Missouri Through an investigation into the emerging field of Youth Theatre coupled with my education I plan to develop a workable and effective youth theatre company based upon these findings with the hope it might inspire others working in this field      Directing Young People in Theatre Samantha Lane,2017-09-16 This book guides readers in taking a play from page to stage with young people Advice from professional theatre directors including Richard Eyre and Indu Rubasingham is combined with practical games and exercises to help both experienced and first time directors create a play with young actors      What Country, Friends, Is This?: Directing Shakespeare with Young Performers Max Hafler,2021-07-22 A highly practical comprehensive guide to exploring Shakespeare with young people ideal for directors youth theatre leaders workshop facilitators and teachers Experienced teacher actor and director Max Hafler tackles the myths that Shakespeare s work is like a foreign country not for the faint hearted or only for a privileged few In this book he shows how you can embrace the challenges of doing Shakespeare with young people and make the plays accessible and exciting for all Beginning with a series of workshops that introduce the skills and principles of voice and acting he sets out step by step how to use devising develop short scenes explore soliloquies and unlock the themes characters stories and language of the plays The holistic approach includes dozens
