Diminished Mind One Family's Extraordinary Battle With Alzheimers:

The Diminished Mind Jean Tyler, Harry Anifantakis, 1991 Jean Tyler presents a candid history of her husband's struggle against Alzheimer's Disease and its devastating effects on her family And in an effort to help dispel the misconceptions about the disease she offers this guide for friends families and caregivers of anyone stricken with Alzheimer's The Diminished Mind Jean Tyler, Harry Anifantakis, 1990-11-01 Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's Kathleen Adams, Persis R. Granger, 2004-01-04 Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's is a support group in print for those escorting a loved one on the Alzheimer's journey Nine women map the passage of a parent through Alzheimer's disease describing the evolution of their own emotional responses to the disease and the changes it effects in the patient and in her relationship with family members The book invites the reader to take a first step in healing from Alzheimer's ripple effect by beginning to journal about the experience Use the stories here as tools to understand your own painful situation Employ them to help you empower yourself sort through your emotions and begin to heal Seize upon that which makes sense to you and disregard that which seems irrelevant Then pick up your favorite pen and notebook and talk about what is going on in your journey with Alzheimer's disease We wish you well Persis Granger Editor Shared Stories from Daughters of Alzheimer's An enthralling ambitious and much needed effort most definitely the sort of work on Alzheimer's that needs to get public notice Karla Morales People's Medical Society Last Rights Barbara Logue, 1993-01-01 Several recent trends demographic social and economic are increasing the incidence and public support of deliberate death among the old and sick The number of elderly people is at an all time high Medical technology can prolong the lives of these men and women but it cannot keep them independent free of pain or competent to manage their own affairs Never before have so many been so sick for so long Changes in the size and structure of the American family make long term home care almost impossible while exorbitant health costs and scarce resources limit the provision of highquality care by paid workers Researcher Barbara J Logue refers to any deliberate behavior that causes death as death control She points out that death control like birth control involves very serious and deeply personal decisions choices that ought to be made on the basis of reliable information with care and compassion without coercion She goes on to assert that like birth control death control should be performed legally and with the help of the medical community Without access to assisted deaths many frail old people are left to endure wretched deaths Some die slowly of neglect or malnutrition in nursing homes Others take their own lives sometimes by violent means while they can still act independently because they are afraid that no one will help them if they wait until they are very sick Some die alone fearful of implicating friends or relatives in their back alley euthanasia While some die too soon because they are poor uneducated or hard to manage others are overtreated and their deaths delayed because doctors and hospitals want to increase their income or fear prosecution if they help a patient die Barbara Logue describes these and many other hazards inherent in our present long term care system noting that all too often the system causes suffering instead of alleviating it

After assessing the alternatives she urges that we must make compassionate death control as available as birth control. We must regulate and monitor it like any other medical procedure taking steps to minimize the risks while maximizing the benefits.

Reconstructing Illness Anne Hunsaker Hawkins, 1999. Serious illness and mortality, those most universal unavoidable and frightening of human experiences, are the focus of this pioneering study which has been hailed as a telling and provocative commentary on our times. As modern medicine has become more scientific and dispassionate, a new literary genre has emerged: pathography, the personal narrative concerning illness, treatment, and sometimes death. Hawkins's sensitive reading of numerous pathographies highlights the assumptions, attitudes, and myths that people bring to the medical encounter. One factor emerges again and again in these case studies: the tendency in contemporary medical practice to focus primarily not on the needs of the individual who is sick but on the condition that we call disease. Pathography allows the individual person a voice, one that asserts the importance of the experiential side of illness and thus restores the feeling of thinking, experiencing, human being to the center of the medical enterprise. Recommended for medical practitioners, the clergy, caregivers, students of popular culture, and the general reader. Reconstructing Illness demonstrates that only when we hear both the doctor's and the patient's voice will we have a medicine that is truly human.

Self-Help That Works John C. Norcross Ph.D., Linda F. Campbell Ph.D., John M. Grohol PsyD, John W. Santrock Ph.D., Florin Selagea M.S., Robert Sommer Ph.D., 2013-03-05. Self-help is big business, but alas, not always a scientific one. Self-help books, websites, and movies abound and are important sources of psychological advice for millions of Americans. But how can you sift through them to find the ones that work? Self-Help That Works is an indispensable guide that enables readers to identify effective self-help materials and distinguish them from those that are potentially misleading or even harmful. Six scientist-practitioners bring careful research expertise and a dozen national studies to the task of choosing and recommending self-help resources. Designed for both laypersons and mental health professionals, this book critically reviews multiple types of self-help resources: from books and autobiographies to films, online programs, support groups, and websites for 41 different behavioral disorders and life challenges. The revised edition of this award-winning book now features online self-help resources, expanded content, and new chapters focusing on autism, bullying, chronic pain, GLB issues, happiness, and nonchemical addictions. Each chapter updates the self-help resources launched since the previous edition and expands the material. The final chapters provide key strategies for consumers evaluating self-help as well as for professionals integrating self-help into treatment. All told, this updated edition of Self-Help That Works evaluates more than 2,000 self-help resources and brings together the collective wisdom of nearly 5,000 mental health professionals. Whether seeking self-help for yourself, loved ones, or patients, this is the go-to research-based guide with the best advice on what works.

Interventions for Alzheimer's Disease Ruth M. Tappen, 1997. This book is written for professionals who find themselves responsible for the planning, administration, or provision of services for the increasing number of older people with Alzheimer's disease and the related dementing diseases.

It provides a background for understanding the disease itself and suggests a wide range of potentially effective interventions for people in the early middle and late stages of Alzheimer's disease. Most important, this information is provided within a framework of care and concern for the person with the disease and an emphasis on honoring the person's rights to respect, privacy, and preservation of dignity. This comprehensive, easy-to-read volume distills the critical information you need from current research and translates it into effective methods of care that can improve individual's functional abilities and well-being from the early to the end stages of the disease.
