J. Novacek, 1994 The Great Dinosaur Hunters and Their Discoveries Edwin Harris Colbert, 1984-01-01 A survey of the noted paleontologists who have uncovered and studied dinosaur fossils including information on their findings The Regional Travel Guide for the Gobi Desert (Mongolia) , Time Traveler Michael Novacek, 2003-03-15 True stories of fossil hunting adventures around the globe from a world class field scientist and a highly entertaining writer The American Scholar Michael Novacek a world renowned paleontologist who has discovered important fossils on virtually every continent is an authority on patterns of evolution and on the relationships among extinct and extant organisms Time Traveler is his captivating account of how his boyhood enthusiasm for dinosaurs became a lifelong commitment to vanguard science He takes us with him as he discovers fossils in his own backyard in Los Angeles then goes looking for them in the high Andes the black volcanic mountains of Yemen and the incredibly rich fossil badlands of the Gobi Desert Wherever Novacek goes he searches for still undiscovered evidence of what life was like on Earth millions of years ago Along the way he has almost drowned been stung by deadly scorpions been held at gunpoint by a renegade army and nearly choked in raging dust storms Fieldwork is very demanding in a host of unusual dramatic sometimes hilarious ways and Novacek writes of its alluring perils with affection and discernment But in addition to being an enthralling adventure story Time Traveler makes sense of many complex themes about dinosaur evolution continental drift mass extinctions new methods for understanding ancient environments and the evolutionary secrets of DNA in fossil organisms Includes photos and illustrations A superb introduction to paleontology Edward O Wilson An engaging book that gives us an excellent sense of the way paleontologists have arrived at their world shaking conclusions The New York Times Book Review Novacek offers a spellbinding natural history of our planet as well as the equally fascinating story of how he fell into the profession Publishers Weekly The Age of Dinosaurs in Russia and Mongolia Michael J. Gao, Mark Norell, 2000 Upper Cretaceous deposits at Ukhaa Tolgod and adjacent localities in the Mongolian Gobi Desert have yielded a large number of superbly preserved lizard specimens including representatives of several new taxa described in this paper and important supplementary material of several previously poorly known taxa. Study of these specimens gives important insight into the taxonomic diversity and systematics of the Late Cretaceous lizard fauna of the Gobi Desert. A preliminary survey indicates that the lizard assemblage from Ukhaa Tolgod and adjacent localities consists of some 30 species in four higher groups: Iguania, Gekkota, Scincomorpha, and Anguimorpha. The iguanians are documented by eight species including three species newly recognized in this paper. The Scincomorpha are the most diverse group represented by as many as 14 species including three new and 11 previously known species. The Anguimorpha are nearly as diverse as the Iguania while the Gekkota is the least diverse group with a single species documented in the assemblage. The scincomorphs include forms that are highly specialized for burrowing life styles interpreted from their cranial morphology as possibly analogous to extant species. The anguimorphs include phylogenetically important basal members of several major anguimorph clades. The paleoecological significance of these lizards cannot be overlooked. According to tooth morphology, most lizards are predatory in terms of habit while true herbivorous species are rare. Most specimens are preserved as skulls articulated with mandibles but virtually complete skeletons in situ are quite common. Delicate parts of the skull such as the braincase and ear ossicles are undistorted and the surfaces of the bones show no sign of sand abrasion. These observations indicate not only relatively quick burial but also burial under relatively mesic climatic conditions with low energy water involved during the taphonomic process. Journal of the American Asiatic Association, 1926 On the Trail of Ancient Man Roy Chapman Andrews, 1926 Bulletin of the American Museum of Natural History Joel Asaph Allen, 2000. Comprises articles on geology, paleontology, mammalogy, ornithology, entomology, and anthropology. New Scientist and Science Journal, 1996 The Mongolia Society Newsletter, 1988 In Pursuit of Early Mammals Zofia Kielan-Jaworowska, 2013. In Pursuit of Early Mammals presents the history of the mammals that lived during the Mesozoic era, the time when dinosaurs ruled the Earth, and describes their origins, anatomy, systematics, paleobiology, and distribution. It also tells the story of the author, a world renowned specialist on these animals, and the other prominent paleontologists who have studied them. Zofia Kielan-Jaworowska was the first woman to lead large scale paleontological expeditions, including eight to the Gobi Desert in Mongolia, which brought back important collections of dinosaur, early mammal, and other fossils. She shares the difficulties and pleasures encountered in finding rare fossils and describes the changing views on early mammals made possible by these discoveries.
