Direct Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel W. Bechthold, 1987-12-31 Direct Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel W. Bechthold, Commission of the European Communities, 1987 Research Reactor Aluminum Spent Fuel National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Kevin D. Crowley, Milton Levenson, 1998-06-06 The U S Department of Energy DOE is preparing an environmental impact statement EIS for management of aluminum spent fuel from foreign and domestic research reactors much of which is highly enriched in uranium 235 This EIS will assess the need for additional treatment and storage facilities at the Savannah River Site to accommodate the receipt of this fuel and it also will assess and select a treatment technology to prepare this fuel for interim storage and eventual shipment to a repository for disposal This National Research Council book which was prepared at the request of DOE s Savannah River Office provides a technical assessment of the technologies costs and schedules developed by DOE for eight alternative treatment options and the baseline reprocessing option It also provides comments on DOE s aluminum spent fuel disposal program a program that is slated to last for about 40 years and cost in excess of 2 billion

Concepts for the Conditioning of Spent Nuclear Fuel for Final Waste Disposal International Atomic Energy Agency, 1992 This report describes various national spent fuel conditioning concepts the current state of technology the waste package designs so far developed and the engineering operations required for their manufacture It supplements IAEA Technical Reports Series No 320 Evaluation of Spent Fuel as a Final Waste Form Radioactive Waste Management, 1981

Disposition of High-Level Waste and Spent Nuclear Fuel Committee on Disposition of High-Level Radioactive Waste Through Geological Isolation, 2001-06-06 Focused attention by world leaders is needed to address the substantial challenges posed by disposal of spent nuclear fuel from reactors and high level radioactive waste from processing such fuel The biggest challenges in achieving safe and secure storage and permanent waste disposal are societal although technical challenges remain Disposition of radioactive wastes in a deep geological repository is a sound approach as long as it progresses through a stepwise decision making process that takes advantage of technical advances public participation and international cooperation Written for concerned citizens as well as policymakers this book was sponsored by the U S Department of Energy U S Nuclear Regulatory Commission and waste management organizations in eight other countries Nuclear Wastes National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Committee on Separations Technology and Transmutation Systems, 1996-03-23 Disposal of radioactive waste from nuclear weapons production and power generation has caused public outcry and political consternation Nuclear Wastes presents a critical review of some waste management and disposal alternatives to the current national policy of direct disposal of light water reactor spent fuel The book offers clearcut conclusions for what the nation should do today and what solutions should be explored for tomorrow The committee examines the currently used once through fuel cycle versus different alternatives of separations and transmutation technology systems by which hazardous radionuclides are converted to nuclides that are either stable or radioactive with short half lives The volume provides detailed findings and conclusions about the status and feasibility of plutonium extraction and more advanced separations technologies as well as three principal transmutation concepts for commercial reactor spent fuel The book discusses nuclear proliferation the U S nuclear regulatory structure issues of health safety and transportation the proposed sale of electrical energy as a means of paying for the transmutation system and other key issues Nuclear Waste Governance Achim Brunnengraber, Maria Rosaria Di Nucci, Ana Maria Isidoro Losada, Lutz Mez, Miranda A. Schreurs, 2015-02-19 This volume examines the national plans that ten Euratom countries plus Switzerland and the United States are developing to address high level radioactive waste storage and disposal The chapters which were written by 23 international experts outline European and national regulations technology choices safety criteria monitoring systems compensation schemes institutional structures and approaches to public involvement Key stakeholders their values and interests are introduced the responsibilities and authority of different actors considered decision making processes are analyzed as well as the factors influencing different national policy choices The views and expectations of different communities regarding participatory decision making and compensation and the steps that have been or are being taken to promote dialogue and constructive problem solving are also considered Spent Fuel and Radioactive Waste Management, 1987 Radioactive Waste Management International Atomic Energy Agency, 1992 Research Reactor Spent Fuel Management: Options and Support to Decision Making IAEA, 2021-12-14 This publication resulting from an IAEA coordinated research project CRP provides information about available strategies for research reactor spent fuel management and presents a decision methodology to assist those selecting among several options to identify the preferred approach for their specific situation The decision support tools were developed to consider not only the cost of the possible research reactor spent fuel management strategies but also the non economic factors that might influence their selection Examples of the technologies that are currently used by some IAEA Member States are provided Additionally this publication provides information about the Excel based decision support tools developed as part of this CRP along with case studies and tutorials to assist users Direct Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel I. S. Wheelton, B. R. Kelly, E. Wood, Radioactive Waste Management Research Programme (Great Britain), National Nuclear Corporation Ltd, 1987 Nuclear Spent Fuel Management OECD Nuclear Energy Agency. Working Group on Spent Fuel Management, 1986 Radioactive Waste Management Approaches for Developed Countries, 2013 Nuclear power has demonstrated over the last 30 years its capacity to produce base load electricity at a low predictable and stable cost due to the very low economic dependence on the price of uranium However the management of used nuclear fuel remains the Achilles Heel of this energy source since the storage of used nuclear fuel is increasing as evidenced by the following number with 2 000 tons of UNF produced each year by the 104 US nuclear reactor units which equates to a total of 62 000 spent fuel assemblies stored in dry cask and 88 000 stored in pools Two options adopted by several countries will be presented The first one adopted by Europe Japan and Russia consists of recycling the used nuclear fuel after irradiation in a nuclear reactor Ninety six percent of uranium and plutonium contained in the spent fuel could be reused to produce electricity and are worth recycling The separation of uranium and plutonium from the wastes is realized through the industrial PUREX process so that they can be recycled for re use in a nuclear reactor as a mixed oxide MOX fuel The second option undertaken by Finland Sweden and the United States implies the direct disposal of used nuclear fuel into a geologic formation One has to remind that only 30% of the worldwide used nuclear fuel are currently recycled the larger part being stored 70% in pool waiting for scientific or political decisions A third option is emerging with a closed fuel cycle which will improve the global sustainability of nuclear energy This option will not only decrease the volume amount of nuclear waste but also the long term radiotoxicity of the final waste as well as improving the long term safety and the heat loading of the final repository At the present time numerous countries are focusing on the R D recycling activities of the ultimate waste composed of fission products and minor actinides americium and curium Several new chemical extraction processes such as TRUSPEAK ALSEP EXAM or LUCA are pursued worldwide and their approaches will be highlighted

Technical Reports Series ,1992 Briefing on the Swedish Program on Nuclear Waste Management ,1987 Minimization of Radioactive Waste from Nuclear Power Plants and the Back End of the Nuclear Fuel Cycle International Atomic Energy Agency,1995 Waste management at the back end of the nuclear fuel cycle comprises the various activities involved in the handling of the spent fuel once it has left the reactor The purpose of the minimization of radioactive waste is threefold a to reduce the risks of radiation exposure of technical personnel as well as of the public b to reduce contamination of the environment and c to reduce overall costs by reducing the repository space required for final waste disposal Waste minimization has become a major part of waste management policies

Radioactive Waste Management in Perspective OECD Nuclear Energy Agency,1996 This report explains the basic principles and main stages of radioactive waste management including the two current options of direct disposal and reprocessing of spent fuel as well as the actual and planned use of underground repositories in deep geological formations Page 3
