

USING FILES IN THE RECORDS CENTRE

ISSUING RECORDS TO CREATING AGENCIES

1. Only the agency that created the file, or an agency that is a successor to it, may borrow a file from the records centre. When an agency wishes to borrow a file, its records office will send three copies of the completed records centre request form to the records centre. The form should include the following information:

- departmental code
- box number
- records centre location number
- title of file or description of record required, and its reference number
- requester's name and telephone number.

See Figure 5: Records Centre Request Form.

2. If the agency has not provided the box number and location number, consult the records centre location register and note the numbers on the records centre request form.
3. Take the form with you, find the box and remove the required file. Enter the date loaned on all copies of the form. Replace the file with the top copy of the records centre request form by paper clipping the form to the inside of the box.
4. Place a records centre issue sticker on the front cover of the file and write on it the records centre number. If there are no stickers, use a stamp or write the box number on the front of the file. Do not cover up any of the writing on the file cover by doing this.

See Figure 6: Records Centre Issue Sticker.
