Dirty Decade New Zealand In The 80s:

Dirty Decade Stephen Stratford, 2002-01-01 The eighties were New Zealand's adolescence. After years of control and repression we were released when one night Rob Muldoon had one gin too many and called a snap election. He lost and David Lange won. Suddenly a new generation was in charge and blowing raspberries at the US. It went to our heads. We suddenly had new freedoms: gays were no longer criminals; you could make or lose a fortune and make another one. We suddenly had new pleasures: not least a decent cup of coffee. We had good music and terrible clothes, heady triumphs and dismal failures. There were cowboys in the sharemarket, champagne corks popping, misbehaviour and ugly mirror glass towers everywhere. Then there was the Rainbow Warrior, Goat farming, Tax loss movies, Forex dealers having food fights in restaurants, Feminists throwing eggs at the Governor General, Merchant bankers as national heroes. The unfortunate experiment at National Women's. The Bob Jones party. Stockbrokers modelling shirts in glossy magazines. Kiwifruit with everything in restaurants. Kohanga reo. Personal growth. And terrible clothes. In The Dirty Decade Stephen Stratford gives us an entertaining portrait in words and pictures of the adolescent decade that changed New Zealand forever. This is his cheerfully one-eyed eyewitness account of those years. The Dirty Decade includes a timeline listing significant events, New Zealand films, bestselling books and hit songs of each year, time warp recipes and many unpublished photographs documenting the changes of the decade.

Dear Neil Roberts Airini Beautrais, 2015-07-01 It is November 18 1982 and Neil Ian Roberts is 22 years old. He walks up to the Police Computer Centre in Whanganui at 12.35am. Shortly after there was an explosion. Neil committed suicide attempting to destroy that computer center but who was Neil Roberts? This book is the search for the story of a quiet young man, an anarchist, a figure who moves differently or vanishes altogether in different versions of history. As much a work of documentary as poetry, this extraordinary collection considers the uncomfortable event of Neil Roberts's death, its significance in the context of 1980s New Zealand and how this action has reverberated through others' lives, including the poet's own.

No Left Turn Chris Trotter, 2010-12-01 A bold and passionate re-examination of New Zealand political history by a leading social commentator. The way some histories tell it: Europeans came to New Zealand keen to establish a Little Britain in the South Seas. Not so, says Chris Trotter. Most nineteenth-century immigrants wanted something better than the misery and oppression of the world they had left, and Trotter reveals just how close they and their descendants came to building a new one. On each occasion, however, their achievements were resisted and ultimately overturned by those who saw New Zealand simply as a source of profits. Trotter pulls no punches in describing the methods these partisans of profit used to ensure there was no Left turn: jamming radio broadcasts, political arson, even murder. From Massey's Cossacks to Muldoon's riot squads, violence and repression have been the Right's weapons, not the Left's. Charting the evolution of New Zealand's unique brand of democratic socialism, Trotter offers insightful and often surprising verdicts on the leading participants, including John A. Lee, Peter Fraser, Fintan Patrick Walsh, David Lange and Helen Clark. Passionately argued, infused with poetic imagery and comprehensively researched No Left Turn is a unique and indispensable contribution to our political and social history an inspiration for anyone who puts money second and people first and a deliberate provocation to everyone else
