Disability Studies and the Environmental Humanities Sarah Jaquette Ray, Jay Sibara, 2017-06-01 Although scholars in the environmental humanities have been exploring the dichotomy between wild and built environments for several years few have focused on the field of disability studies a discipline that enlists the contingency between environments and bodies as a foundation of its scholarship On the other hand scholars in disability studies have demonstrated the ways in which the built environment privileges some bodies and minds over others yet they have rarely examined the ways in which toxic environments engender chronic illness and disability or how environmental illnesses disrupt dominant paradigms for scrutinizing disability Designed as a reader for undergraduate and graduate courses Disability Studies and the Environmental Humanities employs interdisciplinary perspectives to examine such issues as slow violence imperialism race toxicity eco sickness the body in environmental justice ableism and other topics With a historical scope spanning the seventeenth century to the present this collection not only presents the foundational documents informing this intersection of fields but also showcases the most current work making it an indispensable reference

Disability and the Environment in American Literature Matthew J. C. Cella, 2016-10-12 This book includes a collection of essays that explore the relationship between Disability Studies and literary ecocriticism particularly as this relationship plays out in American literature and culture The contributors to this collection operate from the premise that there is much to be gained for both fields by putting them in conversation and they do so in a variety of ways In this manner the collection contributes to what Joni Adamson and Scott Slovic have referred to as a third wave of ecocriticism Adamson and Slovic attribute the rise of this third wave to the richly diverse contributions to ecocriticism over the past decade by scholars intent on including postmodernism ecofeminism transnationalism globalization and postcolonialism into ecocritical discussions The essays in Toward an Ecosomatic Paradigm extend this approach of this third wave by analyzing disability from an environmental point of view while simultaneously examining the environmental imagination from a disability studies perspective More specifically the goal of the collection is to investigate the role that literary narratives play in fostering the ecosomatic paradigm As a theoretical framework the ecosomatic paradigm underscores the dynamic and inter relational process wherein human mind bodies interact with the places both built and wild they inhabit That is the ecosomatic paradigm proceeds from the assumption that nature and culture are meshed in an ongoing and deep relationship that has implications for both the human subject and the natural world An ecosomatic approach highlights the profound overlap between embodiment and emplacement and is therefore enriched by both disability studies and ecocritical insight By drawing on points of confluence between disability studies and ecological criticism the various ecosomatic readings in this collection challenge normative even ableist constructions of the body environment dyad by complicating and expanding our understanding of this relationship as it is represented in American literature and culture Collectively the essays in this book augment the American environmental imagination by highlighting the relationship between disability and the environment as reflected in American literary texts across multiple periods and genres
