Disability Politics And Community Care:

Disability Politics and Community Care Mark Priestley, 1999 Priestley encourages health and welfare professionals and policy makers to start working much more closely with disabled people themselves He argues that this will break barriers between user and provider and result in the reality of integrated living Disability Politics and Care Christine Kelly, 2016-01-15 Disability Politics and Care examines a provincial direct funding program to illuminate what happens when people with disabilities take control of their own care arrangements In addition to investigating responses from a wide range of stakeholders Christine Kelly reflects on the broader social and political implications of these types of programs She probes the divide that exists between rejections of care by disability activists on the one hand and attempts by feminists to value gendered forms of labour on the other Rather than trying to find common ground between these viewpoints Kelly explores how maintaining a tension between them could positively transform the understanding and practice of care Enlivened by the voices of disabled people attendants and informal supports this book uses one independent living program as a starting point for untangling much larger philosophical theoretical and material questions about self determination inter dependence governance and justice Disability and U.S. Politics Dana Lee Baker, 2017-01-16 More than 1 billion people worldwide have a disability and they are all affected by politics This two volume work explores key topics at the heart of disability policy such as voting race gender age health care social security transportation abuse and the environment Disability policy is no longer an area that can be adequately addressed within major areas of public policy such as welfare health labor and education Disability has become widely acknowledged in recent decades partly because of the increasing number of disabled citizens across all demographic populations Advocates argue that diversity of all kinds deserves recognition and accommodation This set examines policies targeting disability to provide a multifaceted description of the political participation of people with disabilities as well as disability policy development in the United States The first volume focuses on political participation and voting issues and the second volume covers disability public policy In these two volumes numerous scholars and experts in the social sciences and humanities explore timely topics that are key to disability policy questions including activism voting race gender age health care social security civil rights abuse the environment and even death Readers will better understand the challenges that policymakers face in grappling with controversies over issues of social engineering and public policy often attempting to reconcile majority experience with minority rights The chapters analyze the history of disability politics describe the disability policy infrastructure as it currently exists in the United States and provide insight into current disability related controversies Disability & the Politics of Education Susan Lynn Gabel, Scot Danforth, 2008 Disability and the Politics of Education An International Reader is a rich resource that deals comprehensively with the many aspects of the complex topic of disability studies in education For nearly two decades global attention has been given to education as a human right through global initiatives such as Education for All EFA and the

Salamanca Statement Yet according to UNESCO reaching the goals of EFA remains one of the most daunting challenges facing the global community Today millions of the world's disabled children cannot obtain a basic childhood education particularly in countries with limited resources Even in the wealthiest countries many disabled children and youth are educationally segregated from the nondisabled particularly if they are labeled with significant cognitive impairment International agencies such as the United Nations and the World Bank have generated funds for educational development but unfortunately these funds are administered with the assumption that west is best thereby urging developing countries to mimic educational policies in the United States and the United Kingdom in order to prove their aid worthiness This McDonaldization of education reproduces the labeling resource allocation and social dynamics long criticized in disability studies The authors in this volume explore these subjects and other complexities of disability and the politics of education In doing so they demonstrate the importance and usefulness of international perspectives and comparative approaches

Piloting Choice and Control for Older People Heather Clark, Jan Spafford, Joseph Rowntree Foundation, 2001 New regulations which came into force in February 2000 have empowered local authorities in England to extend the scope of the 1996 Community Care Direct Payments Act to older people This timely report is based on an evaluation of an innovative pilot scheme finding new ways to deliver services to older people giving them greater choice and control The scheme provides a model for other local authorities wanting to find ways to change care management and implement Direct Payments for older service users Based on interviews held with older users and care managers involved in the pilot scheme Piloting choice and control for older people examines issues around empowering informal carers looks at older people's perceptions of the pilot scheme and their definitions of quality services concludes with suggestions for positive change in provider organisations and the culture of care management draws out broader lessons for service delivery and those applicable to the introduction of Direct Payments for older people vbTab The report is invaluable reading for managers and front line workers in all departments and agencies involved in the provision of services for older people as well as policy makers researchers and anyone interested in community care older people and service user empowerment

Disability, Citizenship and Community Care: A Case for Welfare Rights? Kirstein Rummery, 2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2002 A critical look at the experiences of disabled people in accessing and receiving community care in the UK The author uses a framework of citizenship encompassing civil and social rights to ask difficult questions about the role the welfare state plays in preventing and promoting people's independence The book discusses the relationship between rationing policy professional practice and the needs of disabled people and their families from a citizenship perspective and provides critical insight into possible solutions to promoting disabled people's citizenship and independence within the limits of today's welfare state

Disability Studies Quarterly, 1994 Collins Dictionary John Pierson, Martin Thomas, 2002 Fully revised and updated the new edition of the Collins Dictionary of Social Work includes much new material on Britain's constantly evolving social landscape giving concise and comprehensible explanations in jargon free language of the most important social work terms and is designed particularly for students in further and higher education who are preparing for careers in child care psychiatric nursing residential care community care counselling the probation service and social work

Disabling Barriers - Enabling Environments John Swain, 1993-03-02 An explicit and detailed breakdown from the perspective of participants of why disabled people are engaged in a revolution a revolution to break down barriers of attitude and the environment I am sure it will have a place of honour in the increasing list of disability literature Journal of Social Policy The major theme of this accessible and engaging text is that disability is caused by the way society is organized The contributors demonstrate the many ways in which disabled people have taken the initiative in reshaping both the meaning of disability and the services and support available to them The notion that disability is either a medical condition or a personal tragedy is strongly challenged and the marginalized position of black disabled people and disabled women is also addressed Focusing on the barriers which disabled people encounter in education housing leisure and employment this book critically reviews professional practice and describes alternative models of support which give disabled people control over their own lives Disabling Barriers Enabling Environments is the Course Reader on the Open University course The Disabling Society K665

The New Political Economy of Disability Georgia van Toorn, 2021-02-22 This book addresses the ways in which individualised market based models of disability support provision have been mobilised in and across different countries through cross national investigation of individualised funding IF as an object of neoliberal policy mobility Combining rich theoretical and interdisciplinary perspectives with extensive empirical research the book provides a timely examination of the policy processes and mechanisms driving the spread of IF amongst countries at the forefront of disability policy reform It is argued that IF s mobility is not attributable to neoliberalism alone but to the complex intersections between neoliberal and emancipatory agendas and to the transnational networks that have blended the two agendas in new ways in different institutional contexts The book shows how disability rights struggles have synchronised with neoliberal agendas which explains IF s propensity to move and mutate between different jurisdictions Featuring first hand accounts of the activists and advocates engaged in these struggles the book illuminates the consequences and risks of the dangerous liaisons and political trade offs that seemed necessary to get individualised funding on the policy agenda for disabled people It will be of interest to all scholars and students working in disability studies social policy sociology and political science more generally

Policy and Politics, 1979 Chronic Politics Philip J. Funigiello, 2005 Funigiello unlocks the puzzle of why the United States has never guaranteed its citizens health security comparable to that enjoyed by people of other first world nations and he tells what needs to happen for policy reform to take place Examining specific episodes in the history of health care financing he highlights the importance of key individuals in the legislative process the political haggling involved in shaping a bill the clash of personalities and agendas that determines its fate and the extent to which American ideas about fairness are
