Connected in Isolation Eszter Hargittai, 2022-11-08 What life during lockdown reveals about digital inequality The vast majority of people in wealthy highly connected or digitally privileged societies may have crossed the digital divide but being online does not mean that everyone is equally connected and digital inequality reflects experience both online and off In Connected in Isolation Eszter Hargittai looks at how this digital disparity played out during the unprecedented isolation imposed in the early days of the coronavirus pandemic During initial COVID 19 lockdowns the Internet for many became a lifeline as everything from family get togethers to doctor s visits moved online Using survey data collected in April and May of 2020 in the United States Italy and Switzerland Hargittai explores how people from varied backgrounds and differing skill levels were able to take advantage of digital media to find the crucial information they needed to help loved ones procure necessities understand rules and risks Her study reveals the extent to which long standing social and digital inequalities played a critical role in this move toward computer mediated communication and were often exacerbated in the process However Hargittai notes context matters her findings reveal that some populations traditionally disadvantaged with technology such as older people actually did better than others in part because of the continuing importance of traditional media television in particular The pandemic has permanently shifted how reliant we are upon online information and the implications of Hargittai's groundbreaking comparative research go far beyond the pandemic Connected in Isolation informs and expands our understanding of digital media including how they might mitigate or worsen existing social disparities whom they empower or disenfranchise and how we can identify and expand the skills people bring to them Small Business Online Jim Carroll, Rick Broadhead, 1998 Get Smarter
